FORCES 300 MILES FROM MOSCOW, NAZI COMMAND CLAIMS

SMASHING OF ELITE DIVISION IS REPORTED IN RED COMMUNIQUE

By the Associated Press

A German invasion force, at last smashing into the Stalin line, has crossed the bloody Berezina river and reached the banks of the Dnepr in its two-week-old drive toward Moscow, the German high command reported today.

This flat announcement was made in the face of Russian claims that the Berezina river sector had been turned into a watery death trap for thousands of Germans and meant, if true, that the Germans were about 300 miles from Moscow, having traversed more than 300 miles of Russian territory, counting the Polish buffer zone.

Russian claims were highlighted by a declaration that the drive thus far had cost the Germans nearly 750,000 losses in dead, wounded and prisoners—a smashing of the elite divisions of the German army.

The Hitler command used the reiterative phrase, "operations . . . proceeding according to plan," and said that "several thousand prisoners" had been taken in encounters between German reserves and scattered Russian detachments south of the Pinsk marshes.

Credit went to Hungarian forces for their report that Kolomea and Stanislawok in a southern sector of the great battlefront had been captured.

Finnish units at the side of Germans were said to have progressed "despite great difficulties of terrain and stubborn resistance."

In other sectors of the war, diplomatic and military, British troops were reported to have reached the Syrian-Turkish frontier in a push from Mosul, Iraq, cutting off the northeast corner of Syria, and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain, predicting a German peace offer, rejected it in advance on Britain's behalf.

The Red Army declared its stand along the Berezina and Druja waterways had rolled back terrific German assaults, with Germans caught in a destructive hail of artillery and machine-gun fire in the very waters there to be carried, wounded or dying, down stream.

This, to credit the Russian reports, was the modern counterpart of the rout of Napoleon—with variations. Napoleon's grande armee was cut to pieces on the bloody Berezina in its 1812 flight from Moscow. Now, the Germans are meeting fierce resistance there on the way to Moscow.

Not far east of the Berezina and the waterway system to the north which includes the Druja lies the Stalin line—the Red Army's principal fortifications.

By the German version, panzer columns which flanked France's Maginot Line were rolling toward it for their major test against the might of the Soviet Union.

The center of the fiercest fighting and the direst threat to Moscow apparently extended north from Bobruisk through Borisov on the Berezina to almost a 200-mile battlefront, anchored at the north on the junction of the Latvian and old Russian frontiers.

The Russians earlier said the fighting extended past Lepel on the Berezina canal, 40 miles north of Borisov. The town of Druja, on the stream of the same name, is 60 miles further north and lies east of Dvinsk.

The Germans claim to have reached the Latvian frontier of old Russia after a march through Lithuania and Latvia, two of the Baltic states Russia had absorbed as a buffer zone. The Russians have acknowledged a rectification of their lines in the Latvian border region.

BLOWS AGAINST GERMAN PORTS ARE INCREASING

BATTLESHIPS BLASTED

By the Associated Press

London, July 5.—A mighty force of RAF bombers, perhaps the biggest yet in daylight, slashed back across the channel over northern France today in another big raid in the almost month-long chain of British day-and-night air blows against Germany.

The day shift took up where the night bombers left off after battering Nazi targets from the industrial Rhineland to the Atlantic refuge ports harboring some of Germany's biggest warships and U-boat fleets.

The drone of planes over the channel was heard continuously for a half hour, and shore observers speculated that the RAF was increasing continuously the numbers of its raiding bombers and guardian fighters.

One big formation of fighter-escorted bombers returned from a direction west of Boulogne after heavy explosions, apparently some distance inland, had been heard twice within an hour from the French side.

OPPOSITION TO MARSHALL PLAN IS INCREASING

Word Spreads in Senate That Sweeping Recommendations for Revision Of Draft Laws Might be Put Aside for the Time Being

M'NARY LEADS FOES

Washington, July 5—(AP)—Word spread in the Senate today that General George C. Marshall's sweeping recommendations for revision of the draft laws might be put aside for awhile.

This report, originated by an administration lieutenant who asked not to be quoted by name, circulated at the capitol while Senator McNary (R-Ore), minority leader, voiced his outspoken opposition to Marshall's proposal for keeping selectees and National Guardsmen in service beyond one year and for lifting the ban against sending draftees out of this hemisphere.

On the other hand, Robert P. Patterson, assistant secretary of war, approved the recommendations which the chief of staff made Thursday. Patterson said he did not know whether such steps would be necessary, but added that "we should have an army prepared for whatever emergency we may meet."

Expressing the views that Marshall's recommendations would require considerable study by the White House before they could be offered to congress, an administration spokesman added that they probably would be withheld until overwhelming congressional approval was assured. Such approval, he added, could not be obtained at present and probably would be possible only if there

DICTATORS SCORED BY PRESIDENT

Chief Executive, After Nine Relatively Carefree Days At Hyde Park, Returns To Capital to Muster More Weapons Against Combination in Which he Sees Definite Menace to Freedom Americans Hold Dear

CALLS FOR LOYALTY, UNITY AND EFFICIENCY

Washington, D. C., July—(AP)—President Roosevelt returned to the capital today to muster more weapons against a "dictator combination" in which he saw a definite menace to the freedom Americans hold dear.

There were signs that he was ready to act on Russian requests for aid against the Nazi military juggernaut, authough details of the transactions were expected to be kept secret.

Mr. Roosevelt, going back after nine relatively carefree days at his country estate at Hyde Park, N. Y., left for Washington by train late last night after broadcasting a Fourth of July warning to his fellow Americans that their freedom was threatened.

Gathered around radios and amplifiers, millions of Americans everywhere heard him speak, joined with Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, vacationing in Colorado, in the pledge of allegiance to the flag, and heard the marine band in Washington play the Star Spangled Banner.

Mr. Roosevelt told them that they must realize tney were pledging not only allegiance to flag and country, but also their work, their will, and if necessary, their very lives.

He called upon them for loyalty and unity, for speed, efficiency and toil, and for an end to "backbiting" and to "sabotage that runs far deeper than the blowing up of munitions plants."

"I tell the American people solemnly," he said, "that the United States will never survive as a happy and fertile oasis of liberty surrounded by a cruel desert of dictatorship."

Americans fought in 1776, the president declared, for a great principle that government should

"We shall not let go until we have done the job and we welcome all those who will give us a hand to finish it."

SEEK UNIFIED PLAN OF ACTION IN MILK STRIKE

Representatives of 53,000 Dairymen in Three States Meet Today With Retired Industralist Owen D. Young to Discuss Stoppage

ONE GROUP DECLINES

Utica, N. Y., July 5—(AP)—Representatives of 53,000 dairymen in three states meet today with retired industrialist Owen D. Young to form a "unified plan of action" in a milk strike that the sponsoring dairy farmers union claims has cut New York City's daily milk supply two thirds.

Accepting Young's invitations to the conference were the Dairymen's League, with an estimated 30,000 members, and the union which called the stoppage five days ago in an effort to obtain a uniform price of $3 per hundredweight (47 quarts) for milk shipped to the Metropolitan market as against an estimated July price of $2.15.

New York City health officials reported an approximate 3,200,000 quart reduction in their estimate of a 7,500,000 quart daily flow. The union, however held that the normal daily fluid supply is 5,000,000 quarts and that the remaining 2,500,000 quarts represent milk by-products such as butter and cheese made in rural areas and shipped to the city.

ONE KILLED IN ROARING BLAZE ON BROADWAY

Twenty-Nine Others Are Hurled Across Street About Thirty Feet Away And Deposited Against The Facade of A. T. and T. Building

FIRE UNDER CONTROL

New York, July 5—(AP)—A roaring blaze which had smoldered undetected more than 24 hours in a brick building on lower Broadway killed one fireman early today and injured 29 others.

The body of the dead man, Carl Bischoff, was carried out two hours after the fire was declared under control.

The injured were taken to hospitals, where they were found to be suffering mainly from burns.

They were hurled across the street by two blasts—backdrafts—of smoke and flames that broke the early morning silence of the financial district like major explosions.

So great was the force of the blasts that they literally picked up the firemen and hurled them about 30 feet across Broadway, depositing them on the sidewalk or against the facade of the American Telephone and Telegraph building.

Heavy steel-shuttered windows popped like corks from the six-story building housing Modell's sporting goods store on lower Broadway between Fulton and John streets as firemen, responding to four alarms, crashed in a vestibule door.

The flames, which firemen believe started in the tightly-shut building Thursday night and gained potential force between then and 4 a. m. (EST) today, shot through the structure's roof and spread to the American Telephone and Telegraph reported similar ground wire difficulty, and RCA communications and press wireless said their service was impeded frequently.

The Maasdam was torpedoed in the Atlantic last month. Nine of the 17 American nurses on board arrived in England yesterday. Six are known to be on another ship. The whereabouts of two still is unknown, but Dr. John Gordon of the Red Cross hospital unit said he believed they had been picked up by a third ship and are safe.

Traffic Accidents Result in 151 Deaths in Country, With Airplane Crashes, Drownings, Shootings And Other Causes Taking a toll of An Additional 82 Lives, Bringing Total to 233

SIX AUTOISTS KILLED AT GRADE CROSSINGS

By the Associated Press

With 20 accidental deaths, Pennsylvania led the nation in Independence Day fatalities, 19 the result of highway accidents.

Traffic accidents resulted in 157 deaths, only three less than the total fatalities from all causes on last year's Fourth of July.

A rising holiday traffic toll was reported across the nation, with automobiles bringing death to at least 151 pleasure seekers—or 23 more than the total fatalities from all causes on last year's Fourth of July.

Drownings, airplane crashes, shootings and other violent forms of death took an additional 82 lives, bringing the total fatalities to 233, as reported by 8 a. m. (EST) today. In previous years, the National Safety Council estimated at 85 the normal average number of traffic deaths for a Friday in July.

Last year's low record of only two deaths from fireworks was repeated, one such fatality occurring in Missouri and another at Connesville, Ind., where a pyrotechnical expert was killed at an authorized fireworks display. Ohio and California both reported 18 total deaths.

Worst single tragedy was an automobile-train chash at the Long Island Railroad's Matituck, N. Y., grade crossing, where six automobile occupants were killed and a seventh critically injured.

Deaths by states:

Alabama 4, Arizona 1, Arkansas 4, California 23, Colorado 1, Connecticut 2, Florida 5, Georgia 6, Illinois 18, Indiana 8, Iowa 5, Kansas 2, Kentucky 3, Louisiana 3, Maine 1, Maryland 2, Massachusetts 6, Michigan 9, Minnesota 6, Mississippi 3, Missouri 4, New Jersey 2, New Mexico 4.

Independence Day addresses brought a mighty call for American unity from President Roosevelt and other national figures.

SYRIAN DRIVE IS INTENSIFIED

Jerusalem, July 5—(AP)—British and Indian mechanized forces, striking from central and eastern Syria, made Aleppo, chief city in the north, their objective today after the capture of Deir EzZor and Tell Kotchek, a military spokesman said.

In the Lebanon theaters, meanwhile the royal navy was reported to have bombarded a French coastal stronghold hampering the Australian advance on Beirut.

Deir EzZor, headquarters of the French Middle Euphrates command and an important supply center, was taken yesterday by Indian troops after an advance of more than 75 miles from Abou Kemal on the Syrian-Iraq border,

DICTATORS SCORED BY PRESIDENT

Chief Executive, After Nine Relatively Carefree Days At Hyde Park, Returns To Capital to Muster More Weapons Against Combination in Which he Sees Definite Menace to Freedom Americans Hold Dear

CALLS FOR LOYALTY, UNITY AND EFFICIENCY

Washington, D. C., July—(AP)—President Roosevelt returned to the capital today to muster more weapons against a "dictator combination" in which he saw a definite menace to the freedom Americans hold dear.

There were signs that he was ready to act on Russian requests for aid against the Nazi military juggernaut, authough details of the transactions were expected to be kept secret.

Mr. Roosevelt, going back after nine relatively carefree days at his country estate at Hyde Park, N. Y., left for Washington by train late last night after broadcasting a Fourth of July warning to his fellow Americans that their freedom was threatened.

Gathered around radios and amplifiers, millions of Americans everywhere heard him speak, joined with Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, vacationing in Colorado, in the pledge of allegiance to the flag, and heard the marine band in Washington play the Star Spangled Banner.

Mr. Roosevelt told them that they must realize tney were pledging not only allegiance to flag and country, but also their work, their will, and if necessary, their very lives.

He called upon them for loyalty and unity, for speed, efficiency and toil, and for an end to "backbiting" and to "sabotage that runs far deeper than the blowing up of munitions plants."

"I tell the American people solemnly," he said, "that the United States will never survive as a happy and fertile oasis of liberty surrounded by a cruel desert of dictatorship."

Americans fought in 1776, the president declared, for a great principle that government should

NO ONE WANTS JOB AS MAYOR OF UNIONTOWN

By FRANKLIN BANKER

Uniontown, July 5.—(AP)—"Help wanted: One Mayor."

There was no such sign hung in Uniontown today—but there might well have been.

For the first time in its history, this city of 21,000 was without a mayor.

For a month city council has been unable to name a mayor—and no one has asked for the $2,400-a-year job.

Thomas B. Jaquette, councilman and acting mayor, doesn't want the post. "I don't have sufficient time to give to it," he explained. "My insurance business takes all my time."

As council failed to choose a

BRITAIN DETERMINED TO DESTROY HITLER

London, July 5—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden reaffirmed today Britain's determination to destroy Adolf Hitler and "all he stands for."

"We are not in any circumstances prepared to negotiate with him at any time on any subject," Eden told an outdoor meeting. "We are all out to beat Hitler."

"We shall not let go until we have done the job and we welcome all those who will give us a hand to finish it."

Eden added the warning that "we should make the greatest mistake, were we to imagine that extension of the conflict into Russia justified us in relaxing our vigor even for an instant."

SEEK UNIFIED PLAN OF ACTION IN MILK STRIKE

ONE GROUP DECLINES

Utica, N. Y., July 5—(AP)—Representatives of 53,000 dairymen in three states meet today with retired industrialist Owen D. Young to form a "unified plan of action" in a milk strike that the sponsoring dairy farmers union claims has cut New York City's daily milk supply two thirds.

Accepting Young's invitations to the conference were the Dairymen's League, with an estimated 30,000 members, and the union which called the stoppage five days ago in an effort to obtain a uniform price of $3 per hundredweight (47 quarts) for milk shipped to the Metropolitan market as against an estimated July price of $2.15.

New York City health officials reported an approximate 3,200,000 quart reduction in their estimate of a 7,500,000 quart daily flow. The union, however held that the normal daily fluid supply is 5,000,000 quarts and that the remaining 2,500,000 quarts represent milk by-products such as butter and cheese made in rural areas and shipped to the city.

Declining Young's invitation was

11 MARINES ALL REPORTED SAFE

Washington, July 5—(AP)—The navy announced today that the last three of a group of 11 marines who were missing after the torpedoing of the ship which was carrying them to London had been reported safe.

The names of the three were disclosed for the first time. All privates, they were listed as Taylor G. Collom, of Summerland, Miss.; Shelby O. Jones, Franklinton, La., and Herman W. Trail, Twila, Ky.

Eight of the 11 previously were reported picked up and delivered safely to land. What land, whether England or some north Atlantic island, was not disclosed by the navy. The three missing men, however, were not reported on at all

FIRE UNDER CONTROL

New York, July 5—(AP)—A roaring blaze which had smoldered undetected more than 24 hours in a brick building on lower Broadway killed one fireman early today and injured 29 others.

The body of the dead man, Carl Bischoff, was carried out two hours after the fire was declared under control.

The injured were taken to hospitals, where they were found to be suffering mainly from burns.

They were hurled across the street by two blasts—backdrafts—of smoke and flames that broke the early morning silence of the financial district like major explosions.

So great was the force of the blasts that they literally picked up the firemen and hurled them about 30 feet across Broadway, depositing them on the sidewalk or against the facade of the American Telephone and Telegraph building.

Heavy steel-shuttered windows popped like corks from the six-story building housing Modell's sporting goods store on lower Broadway between Fulton and John streets as firemen, responding to four alarms, crashed in a vestibule door.

The flames, which firemen believe started in the tightly-shut building Thursday night and gained potential force between then and 4 a. m. (EST) today, shot through the structure's roof and spread to the

MAGNETIC CURRENTS DISRUPT SERVICES

New York, July 5—(AP)—Magnetic earth currents early today disrupted wire and wireless communications and for several hours before dawn blacked out all radio and cable contact with Europe.

The disturbances, described by technicians as akin to those sometimes caused by aurora borealis, or northern lights, appeared to be clearing as the morning progressed.

NBC and CBS reported paralysis of short wave reception. Western Union said its ground wires were affected during the night, but that spasmodic interruption ceased by mid-morning.

American Telephone and Telegraph reported similar ground wire difficulty, and RCA communications and press wireless said their service was impeded frequently.

NURSES RELATE GRAPHIC STORY OF SEA ATTACK

BY EDDY GILMORE

London, July 5—(AP)—American Red Cross nurses who survived the sinking of the Netherlands steamer Maasdam said today the sea was so rough when the Maasdam went down that some of their lifeboats capsized.

Several of the nurses were in the water an hour or more before they were picked up by other ships of the convoy, they said.

The Maasdam was torpedoed in the Atlantic last month. Nine of the 17 American nurses on board arrived in England yesterday. Six are known to be on another ship. The whereabouts of two still is unknown, but Dr. John Gordon of the Red Cross hospital unit said he believed they had been picked up by a third ship and are safe.

The nurses said the German submarine came up in the middle

Other speakers included Major General Edward Martin, Commander of the 28th Division.

Traffic Accidents Result in 151 Deaths in Country, With Airplane Crashes, Drownings, Shootings And Other Causes Taking a toll of An Additional 82 Lives, Bringing Total to 233

SIX AUTOISTS KILLED AT GRADE CROSSINGS

By the Associated Press

With 20 accidental deaths, Pennsylvania led the nation in Independence Day fatalities, 19 the result of highway accidents.

Traffic accidents resulted in 157 deaths, only three less than the total fatalities from all causes on last year's Fourth of July.

A rising holiday traffic toll was reported across the nation, with automobiles bringing death to at least 151 pleasure seekers—or 23 more than the total fatalities from all causes on last year's Fourth of July.

Drownings, airplane crashes, shootings and other violent forms of death took an additional 82 lives, bringing the total fatalities to 233, as reported by 8 a. m. (EST) today. In previous years, the National Safety Council estimated at 85 the normal average number of traffic deaths for a Friday in July.

Last year's low record of only two deaths from fireworks was repeated, one such fatality occurring in Missouri and another at Connesville, Ind., where a pyrotechnical expert was killed at an authorized fireworks display. Ohio and California both reported 18 total deaths.

Worst single tragedy was an automobile-train chash at the Long Island Railroad's Matituck, N. Y., grade crossing, where six automobile occupants were killed and a seventh critically injured.

Deaths by states:

Alabama 4, Arizona 1, Arkansas 4, California 23, Colorado 1, Connecticut 2, Florida 5, Georgia 6, Illinois 18, Indiana 8, Iowa 5, Kansas 2, Kentucky 3, Louisiana 3, Maine 1, Maryland 2, Massachusetts 6, Michigan 9, Minnesota 6, Mississippi 3, Missouri 4, New Jersey 2, New Mexico 4.

Independence Day addresses brought a mighty call for American unity from President Roosevelt and other national figures.

Continuing the theme that America stands in danger from abroad, Attorney General Jackson declared in Washington last night that "no amount of cautious behavior, no amount of polite talk will earn for

SHIPPING SHOWS BETTER OUTLOOK

Washington, July 5—(AP)—A sign of improvement in Britain's shipping situation was seen here today in a British notice to the Department of Agriculture that it expects to take at least 20,000 bales of cotton a month under the lend-lease act.

For months Britain, cramped for shipping space, has not bought cotton in this country and has restricted agricultural purchases to highly concentrated goods such as evaporated milk, cheese and dried eggs. Her announcement this week that she was prepared to take a minimum of 20,000 bales of cotton monthly came as a surprise to agricultural officials who had given up hope of disposing of any

RAISE MAXIMUM INSURANCE FOR RELIEF CLIENTS

The State Department of Public Assistance today complied with a request of the legislature that it abolish its $500 maximum limit on insurance policies that may be carried by persons on relief, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

Secretary Howard L. Russell said that the state board of assistance decided the legislature, in its resolution, raised a "valid point" when it sought "to prevent forcing a relief recipient to sacrifice his insurance coverage by reducing a policy to $500 when he might need relief for a short time only."

"Insurance may be retained in any amount" in the future, said Russell, providing the relief recipient assigns that amount over $500 to the department "for eventual repayment" of assistance grants.

This, the secretary declared, "went further than the request" of the Senate resolution which merely asked the maximum be raised from $500 to $1,000.

Straughn will preach the sermon.

RAISE MAXIMUM INSURANCE FOR RELIEF CLIENTS

The State Department of Public Assistance today complied with a request of the legislature that it abolish its $500 maximum limit on insurance policies that may be carried by persons on relief, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

Secretary Howard L. Russell said that the state board of assistance decided the legislature, in its resolution, raised a "valid point" when it sought "to prevent forcing a relief recipient to sacrifice his insurance coverage by reducing a policy to $500 when he might need relief for a short time only."

"Insurance may be retained in any amount" in the future, said Russell, providing the relief recipient assigns that amount over $500 to the department "for eventual repayment" of assistance grants.

This, the secretary declared, "went further than the request" of the Senate resolution which merely asked the maximum be raised from $500 to $1,000.

The summer session of the national championships tournament, which will be held this year in the Convention Hall at Asbury Park, N. J., the week beginning Aug. 4, brings together a greater assembly of master bridge players than any other tournament.

This is a long grind, extending over four sessions. I doubt if any newcomers will carry off the title—it will be a pair of top-ranking stars. But keep an eye on Jack Denny of Toledo and Jack Shore of New York if they participate. Although I have played with Denny only once, I predict he will rank among the top flight players in the next few years. I have always claimed Jack Shore was greatly underrated. If he pairs with some of the stars this summer, he is capable of carrying off any of the titles. Today's hand is an example of his brilliant play.

Shore (South) won the second round of hearts with the ace. After playing the queen and a small diamond to dummy's king, he discovered that, because of the high cards in the suit in his own hand, the suit would be blocked, and he would be unable to win the ninth trick without the spade finesse, which might be wrong.

He solved the situation by leading the suit originally opened by the defenders, a heart. West ran the balance of the hearts, but could win only four tricks, as Shore discarded one diamond from his hand and thus won all five diamonds, two clubs and the two major aces.

The splendid showing of Mrs. R. C. (Sally) Young of Philadelphia and Mrs. A. M. (Helen) Sobel of New York in championship tournaments in the past year or two has emphasized the capability of women as bridge players. But of the 27 Life Masters, only these two women are listed.

I was asked recently if there are any outstanding women bridge players coming along. If Mrs. Wilkinson Wagar of Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. J. E. Folline of Richmond, Va., get to the nationals in Asbury Park this summer, put it down in your little book that one of them will be found among the year's national champions.

Mrs. Folline participated in the world championship Masters individual tournament this year and managed to win a top score in one of the five sessions. She is neither a timid bidder nor timid player, as you can see from today's hand.

South made a nice play on the first trick by following with the queen of diamonds instead of the ace. Mrs. Folline (West), with iron nerve, held up the king. South cashed the ace and knocked out the king.

Mrs. Folline led a spade, and the king was allowed to win. Back came a club, and again the king won. Now the four hearts were cashed, dummy discarding the eight of spades, and South found it impossible to hold his second stopper in both black suits. Mrs. Folline developed a ninth trick for the contract.

HEARTBREAK HONEYMOON

By WATKINS E. WRIGHT

YESTERDAY: Henry and Luella Pell have not been married long—only long enough for a large bluebottle to get into the honey. For Marie Mason, who threw Henry over in the old home town, is now a first rate radio star, and she has asked the Pells to hear her broadcast, and now is talking very, very earnestly to Henry while Luella and Tommy McIntyre dance. Luella can't quite like it all.

Chapter Seven

Lonely Wife

BUT Marie declined to dance, when Tommy invited her to.

"Tired?" Tommy asked.

"No," said Marie. "But we think it would be nice to move on to a quieter place, where we can talk. Henry and I want to go with our reminiscing."

"But I thought you said this was no time for that," Luella reminded.

Marie shrugged, and laughed lightly.

"Luella, darling," she said, "you mustn't take people so literally."

"Yes, darling," said Luella. And then: "But why move on? I thought you two looked awfully cozy and comfy sitting here."

"Too many interruptions," said Henry. "People forever coming up to speak to Marie and ask for her autograph."

They got their wraps and coats.

They went up to a little Hungarian Cafe in the West Seventies. They stayed there until after two o'clock in the morning. Marie and Henry talked—talked—talked. Luella and Tommy smoked and danced, and sometimes sat in perfect silence, thinking, thinking. They would probably have stayed longer—the four of them—if Luella hadn't fully reminded Henry that he had to be at the office at nine.

"My darling's out to make a name for himself," she said. "He can't do that by sitting in cafes all night. Can you, Henry?"

"No," said Henry shortly. "All right, let's break it up."

They parted after an outburst of plans to get together often, to do this, and that, and the other thing.

Later, at home and in bed, Henry said: "They're a grand pair, aren't they, honey? Marie and Tommy?"

Luella said nothing. Henry turned toward her.

"Don't you think so, Luella?" he asked.

"Yes," said Luella. "They're quite grand. Only I think it's awful the way Marie treats Tommy."

"How do you mean?"

"Neglecting him like she does."

"Nonsense!" said Henry. "And, listen, honey, this is New York, not our old hometown—so don't go getting worked up about what people do or don't do—how they act—and all that."

They were silent for a time. Then Luella moved as close as she possibly could to Henry.

"Hold me close, Henry," she said. The old panicky feeling was trying to possess her—that old feeling that perhaps she couldn't compete with a girl like Marie Mason. "Hold me close, Henry. Don't let me go—ever."

"Luella, sweet," said Henry very softly. His arms were about her, he was holding her face against his cheek. "Luella, I believe you are crying!"

"D-d-don't be silly," said Luella. Henry kept on holding her to him.

"What do you mean, asking me not to let you go—ever?" he wanted to know.

"I don't know just why I said that," Luella admitted. "Just the silly remark of a woman—in love."

Henry suddenly remembered the look in Marie's eyes. And the memory disturbed him. He tightened the arms that were about Luella.

"Don't you ever let me go," he said huskily. "Don't ever let me get away from you."

"I won't," said Luella fiercely. "I won't."

Henry was hers, and no one was ever going to take him away from her. Never—never—never. . . .

Dinner For Four

THE days following the broadcast seemed to move on swift wings, so far as Henry Pell was concerned; but not for Luella. Now that the apartment was all settled, and there was nothing urgent to occupy her time, she experienced many a lonely, homesick hour. She visited museums and art galleries, and attended an occasional matinee, but always alone. Sometimes she was so desperate for company that she was tempted to walk up to total strangers and invite them to go places with her.

"Those wives of your business associates certainly aren't in a hurry to call on me," she said to Henry one evening. "Honestly, Henry, I haven't visited with anyone in so long, I—I—feel like an alien or something."

"I'm sorry," Henry said sympathetically. "But they'll get around to it sooner or later. You see, honey, most of them live in the suburbs, and have babies. Wait until summer weather sets in and they'll be inviting us out for week-ends."

And she went on with her knitting, wondering just what sort of young Britisher would eventually wear the sweater she was making, even wondering somewhat morbidly if he would be wearing it when his plane was shot down.

Then, at last, came the night of the dinner. Marie had a free evening, and so had Tommy. And now everything was in readiness for the Pells' first evening at playing hosts. Luella had engaged a colored woman to help her, although she had insisted upon doing practically all the cooking herself.

"Lawsy, Miss Pell," said Patsy, the colored woman, "to look at you-all, so pretty like, I'd sure never think you-all could cook."

Luella looked up from re-arranging the deep red roses in the cut-glass bowl.

"Oh, we Southerners surprise people with the things we can do with our supposedly useless little hands," she said. "You ought to know that yourself, being from Georgia."

"Yas'm," said Patsy. "But so many of us Southern folks change and gets sorter careless-like, sorter get the Yankee-ways when we get up here. She glanced at her reflection in the mantel mirror. "Do I look all right, Miss Pell, wearing this frilly cap?"

"You look positively beautiful, Patsy," said Luella. "If you serve the dinner as well as you look, Mr. Pell and I will be everlastingly grateful to you; and I'll see that he gives you a little something extra."

Henry came in while she was getting into her dainty underthings.

"Hurry out of that bathroom, darling!" he called.

"Coming!" said Luella, joining him. "Hurry yourself, you old slowpoke." She gave him a quick kiss. "Get showered and shaved. Then you'd better mix the cocktails. I've put the ingredients on the kitchen table. When you're through, put the shaker in the ice box."

"Yes'm," said Henry. "Only I'll mix the drinks before I get dolled up. So they'll be cooling."

He went whistling out to the kitchen.

Luella got out fresh socks, shorts, and a shirt for Henry. She laid these upon the bed and began to disrobe. She then went into the bathroom.

Luella had just finished her dressing when the telephone bell rang.

"It's for you-all, Miss Pell!" Patsy called.

"Thank you, Patsy." Luella picked up the receiver.

It was Marie calling.

Important Man

"DARLING," she said, "do forgive me for calling you like this. I know you must be busy preparing dinner, but—"

"For goodness' sake, Marie, don't tell me you're not coming!" Luella cut in.

"Of course I'm coming," said Marie.

"Well, that's a relief! Dinner's all prepared."

"I had to meet a very important radio man for cocktails," Marie went on. "We're down in a hotel lounge. And what I'm calling for is to ask if I may invite him up, for after dinner, you know. I think Henry should meet him by all means. He's nice, too. You'll like him.

"Invite him up, of course," said Luella. "I'm sorry it's too late to ask him for dinner."

"That's all right. He's got an engagement. Will nine-thirty be all right?"

"Yes. We'll be through dinner by then, if you're not late. Henry's going to make some mint julips later. And there'll be one for your friend, Mr. er—"

"Rector is his name," said Marie. "Malcolm Rector."

"Very well, there'll be a julip for Mr. Rector. I'll even save him an order of Brown Betty pudding."

"Thanks a lot, darling! That will be terribly sweet of you. Remember, he's important and we're doing it all for Henry."

"Yes, I'll remember."

And as she turned from the telephone a moment later Luella felt annoyed. That "we" sort of rankled.

"All right, Henry," she called, "the bathroom's yours!"

Henry hurried past her.

"That was Marie who telephoned," Luella said. "She's bringing up a Mr. Rector He's important or something."

"Not Malcolm Rector?" Henry said.

"Yes, I think she did say his first name was Malcolm."

"Say, this is a break! Do you know who he is, darling?"

"No idea—except he's important."

"I'll say he's important!" said Henry. "He's one of the biggest stockholders in the radio business. He's got a yacht, believe it or not—and scads of money. Maybe he'll like us and invite us for a yachting trip along the Sound. Picture us on a yacht, Luella!"

"I'm picturing us," said Luella without enthusiasm. What on earth did one wear on a yacht? "Henry, do hurry! The guests will be here before you're half dressed."

"Okay, beautiful!" Henry turned on the shower. "I ought to sell him a nice interest in some of the land holdings I'm handling."

Luella fluffed the red-gold curls that were piled on top of her head.

"Sometimes I get all mixed up," she said.

"How do you mean?" Henry called.

"I never am sure whether it's all just for business reasons or whether it's for a good time that one meets people in New York."

"Both!" Henry laughed. Then he started singing.

Luella sighed, gave a last look at her reflection, and went out to give the living-room one more going-over. It was perfect, she thought; homelike and charming.

And so was the dinner perfect, in spite of the fact that the very important Mr. Rector was in the offing.

QUIET HOLIDAY IS ENJOYED BY RESIDENTS HERE

With no serious accidents of any kind to mar the day, most local residents spent an enjoyable but quet Fourth of July holiday yesterday. Almost completely absent were the fireworks of former years, and absent, too, the numerous accidents which accompanied their use.

Because of the New York state ban on fireworks, there was not the opportunity for border residents to obtain them which prevailed last year.

Scores of picnic parties were enjoyed by Warren families on the holiday, with every nearby picnic spot proving popular. Others motored to nearby summer resorts for entertainment.

Highways in this section were crowded with cars throughout the day, but with the exception of a few minor incidents, no mishaps were reported by state motor police.

The summer session of the national championships tournament, which will be held this year in the Convention Hall at Asbury Park, N. J., the week beginning Aug. 4, brings together a greater assembly of master bridge players than any other tournament.

This is a long grind, extending over four sessions. I doubt if any newcomers will carry off the title—it will be a pair of top-ranking stars. But keep an eye on Jack Denny of Toledo and Jack Shore of New York if they participate. Although I have played with Denny only once, I predict he will rank among the top flight players in the next few years. I have always claimed Jack Shore was greatly underrated. If he pairs with some of the stars this summer, he is capable of carrying off any of the titles. Today's hand is an example of his brilliant play.

Shore (South) won the second round of hearts with the ace. After playing the queen and a small diamond to dummy's king, he discovered that, because of the high cards in the suit in his own hand, the suit would be blocked, and he would be unable to win the ninth trick without the spade finesse, which might be wrong.

He solved the situation by leading the suit originally opened by the defenders, a heart. West ran the balance of the hearts, but could win only four tricks, as Shore discarded one diamond from his hand and thus won all five diamonds, two clubs and the two major aces.

The splendid showing of Mrs. R. C. (Sally) Young of Philadelphia and Mrs. A. M. (Helen) Sobel of New York in championship tournaments in the past year or two has emphasized the capability of women as bridge players. But of the 27 Life Masters, only these two women are listed.

I was asked recently if there are any outstanding women bridge players coming along. If Mrs. Wilkinson Wagar of Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. J. E. Folline of Richmond, Va., get to the nationals in Asbury Park this summer, put it down in your little book that one of them will be found among the year's national champions.

Mrs. Folline participated in the world championship Masters individual tournament this year and managed to win a top score in one of the five sessions. She is neither a timid bidder nor timid player, as you can see from today's hand.

South made a nice play on the first trick by following with the queen of diamonds instead of the ace. Mrs. Folline (West), with iron nerve, held up the king. South cashed the ace and knocked out the king.

Mrs. Folline led a spade, and the king was allowed to win. Back came a club, and again the king won. Now the four hearts were cashed, dummy discarding the eight of spades, and South found it impossible to hold his second stopper in both black suits. Mrs. Folline developed a ninth trick for the contract.

HEARTBREAK HONEYMOON

by WATKINS E. WRIGHT

YESTERDAY: Henry and Luella Pell have not been married long—only long enough for a large bluebottle to get into the honey. For Marie Mason, who threw Henry over in the old home town, is now a first rate radio star, and she has asked the Pells to hear her broadcast, and now is talking very, very earnestly to Henry while Luella and Tommy McIntyre dance. Luella can't quite like it all.

Chapter Seven

Lonely Wife

BUT Marie declined to dance, when Tommy invited her to.

"Tired?" Tommy asked.

"No," said Marie. "But we think it would be nice to move on to a quieter place, where we can talk. Henry and I want to go with our reminiscing."

"But I thought you said this was no time for that," Luella reminded.

Marie shrugged, and laughed lightly.

"Luella, darling," she said, "you mustn't take people so literally."

"Yes, darling," said Luella. And then: "But why move on? I thought you two looked awfully cozy and comfy sitting here."

"Too many interruptions," said Henry. "People forever coming up to speak to Marie and ask for her autograph."

They got their wraps and coats.

They went up to a little Hungarian Cafe in the West Seventies. They stayed there until after two o'clock in the morning. Marie and Henry talked — talked — talked. Luella and Tommy smoked and danced, and sometimes sat in perfect silence, thinking, thinking. They would probably have stayed longer—the four of them—if Luella hadn't fully reminded Henry that he had to be at the office at nine.

"My darling's out to make a name for himself," she said. "He can't do that by sitting in cafes all night. Can you, Henry?"

"No," said Henry shortly. "All right, let's break it up."

They parted after an outburst of plans to get together often, to do this, and that, and the other thing.

Later, at home and in bed, Henry said: "They're a grand pair, aren't they, honey? Marie and Tommy?"

Luella said nothing. Henry turned toward her.

"Don't you think so, Luella?" he asked.

"Yes," said Luella. "They're quite grand. Only I think it's awful the way Marie treats Tommy."

"How do you mean?"

"Neglecting him like she does."

"Nonsense!" said Henry. "And, listen, honey, this is New York, not our old hometown—so don't go getting worked up about what people do or don't do—how they act—and all that."

They were silent for a time. Then Luella moved as close as she possibly could to Henry.

"Hold me close, Henry," she said. The old panicky feeling was trying to possess her — that old feeling that perhaps she couldn't compete with a girl like Marie Mason. 'Hold me close, Henry. Don't let me go—ever."

"Luella, sweet," said Henry very softly. His arms were about her, he was holding her face against his cheek. 'Luella, I believe you are crying!"

"D-d-don't be silly," said Luella. Henry kept on holding her to him.

"What do you mean, asking me not to let you go—ever?" he wanted to know.

"I don't know just why I said that," Luella admitted. "Just the silly remark of a woman — in love."

Henry suddenly remembered the look in Marie's eyes. And the memory disturbed him. He tightened the arms that were about Luella.

"Don't you ever let me go," he said huskily. "Don't ever let me get away from you."

"I won't," said Luella fiercely. "I won't."

Henry was hers, and no one was ever going to take him away from her. Never—never—never. . . .

Dinner For Four

THE days following the broadcast seemed to move on swift wings, so far as Henry Pell was concerned; but not for Luella. Now that the apartment was all settled, and there was nothing urgent to occupy her time, she experienced many a lonely, homesick hour. She visited museums and art galleries, and attended an occasional matinee, but always alone. Sometimes she was so desperate for company that she was tempted to walk up to total strangers and invite them to go places with her.

"Those wives of your business associates certainly aren't in a hurry to call on me," she said to Henry one evening. "Honestly, Henry, I haven't visited with anyone in so long, I—I—feel like an alien or something."

"I'm sorry," Henry said sympathetically. "But they'll get around to it sooner or later. You see, honey, most of them live in the suburbs, and have babies. Wait until summer weather sets in and they'll be inviting us out for week-ends."

And she went on with her knitting, wondering just what sort of young Britisher would eventually wear the sweater she was making, even wondering somewhat morbidly if he would be wearing it when his plane was shot down.

Then, at last, came the night of the dinner. Marie had a free evening, and so had Tommy. And now everything was in readiness for the Pells' first evening at playing hosts. Luella had engaged a colored woman to help her, although she had insisted upon doing practically all the cooking herself.

"Lawsy, Miss Pell," said Patsy, the colored woman, "to look at you-all, so pretty like, I'd sure never think you-all could cook."

Luella looked up from re-arranging the deep red roses in the cut-glass bowl.

"Oh, we Southerners surprise people with the things we can do with our supposedly useless little hands," she said. "You ought to know that yourself, being from Georgia."

"Yas'm," said Patsy. "But so many of us Southern folks change and gets sorter careless-like, sorter get the Yankee-ways when we get up here. She glanced at her reflection in the mantel mirror. "Do I look all right, Miss Pell, wearing this frilly cap?"

"You look positively beautiful, Patsy," said Luella. "If you serve the dinner as well as you look, Mr. Pell and I will be everlastingly grateful to you; and I'll see that he gives you a little something extra."

Henry came in while she was getting into her dainty underthings.

"Hurry out of that bathroom, darling!" he called.

"Coming!" said Luella, joining him. "Hurry yourself, you old slowpoke." She gave him a quick kiss. "Get showered and shaved. Then you'd better mix the cocktails. I've put the ingredients on the kitchen table. When you're through, put the shaker in the ice box."

"Yes'm," said Henry. "Only I'll mix the drinks before I get dolled up. So they'll be cooling."

He went whistling out to the kitchen.

Luella got out fresh socks, shorts, and a shirt for Henry. She laid these upon the bed and began to disrobe. She then went into the bathroom.

Luella had just finished her dressing when the telephone bell rang.

"It's for you-all, Miss Pell!" Patsy called.

"Thank you, Patsy." Luella picked up the receiver.

It was Marie calling.

Important Man

"DARLING," she said, "do forgive me for calling you like this. I know you must be busy preparing dinner, but—"

"For goodness' sake, Marie, don't tell me you're not coming!" Luella cut in.

"Of course I'm coming," said Marie.

"Well, that's a relief! Dinner's all prepared."

"I had to meet a very important radio man for cocktails," Marie went on. "We're down in a hotel lounge. And what I'm calling for is to ask if I may invite him up, for after dinner, you know. I think Henry should meet him by all means. He's nice, too. You'll like him.

"Invite him up, of course," said Luella. "I'm sorry it's too late to ask him for dinner."

"That's all right. He's got an engagement. Will nine-thirty be all right?"

"Yes. We'll be through dinner by then, if you're not late. Henry's going to make some mint julips later. And there'll be one for your friend, Mr. er—"

"Rector is his name," said Marie. "Malcolm Rector."

"Very well, there'll be a julip for Mr. Rector. I'll even save him an order of Brown Betty pudding."

"Thanks a lot, darling! That will be terribly sweet of you. Remember, he's important and we're doing it all for Henry."

"Yes, I'll remember."

And as she turned from the telephone a moment later Luella felt annoyed. That "we" sort of rankled.

"All right, Henry," she called, "the bathroom's yours!"

Henry hurried past her.

"That was Marie who telephoned," Luella said. "She's bringing up a Mr. Rector He's important or something."

"Not Malcolm Rector?" Henry said.

"Yes, I think she did say his first name was Malcolm."

"Say, this is a break! Do you know who he is, darling?"

"No idea — except he's important."

"I'll say he's important!" said Henry. "He's one of the biggest stockholders in the radio business. He's got a yacht, believe it or not—and scads of money. Maybe he'll like us and invite us for a yachting trip along the Sound. Picture us on a yacht, Luella!"

"I'm picturing us," said Luella without enthusiasm. What on earth did one wear on a yacht? "Henry, do hurry! The guests will be here before you're half dressed."

"Okay, beautiful!" Henry turned on the shower. "I ought to sell him a nice interest in some of the land holdings I'm handling."

Luella fluffed the red-gold curls that were piled on top of her head.

"Sometimes I get all mixed up," she said.

"How do you mean?" Henry called.

"I never am sure whether it's all just for business reasons or whether it's for a good time that one meets people in New York."

"Both!" Henry laughed. Then he started singing.

Luella sighed, gave a last look at her reflection, and went out to give the living-room one more going-over. It was perfect, she thought; homelike and charming.

And so was the dinner perfect, in spite of the fact that the very important Mr. Rector was in the offing.

QUIET HOLIDAY IS ENJOYED BY RESIDENTS HERE

With no serious accidents of any kind to mar the day, most local residents spent an enjoyable but quet Fourth of July holiday yesterday. Almost completely absent were the fireworks of former years, and absent, too, the numerous accidents which accompanied their use.

Because of the New York state ban on fireworks, there was not the opportunity for border residents to obtain them which prevailed last year.

Scores of picnic parties were enjoyed by Warren families on the holiday, with every nearby picnic spot proving popular. Others motored to nearby summer resorts for entertainment.

Highways in this section were crowded with cars throughout the day, but with the exception of a few minor incidents, no mishaps were reported by state motor police.

THE COMMUNITY MUST HELP

A concrete way for every resident of Warren county to help defend his country is offered in the forthcoming United Service Organizations campaign, plans for which have been announced.

Funds—$3,800 of which is Warren county's quota—are to be used in providing for the wholesome use of leisure time of our men and women in uniform and workers in new defense centers. The program will be administered jointly by six organizations whose past records are well known—the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Salvation Army, the Catholic Community Service, the Jewish Welfare Board and the Travelers' Aid Society.

The youth of our nation is the core of our defense.

More than 1,500,000 young Americans are in uniform today.

Over 2,000,000 others, many of them young people, are engaged in our new defense industries.

These are our defenders. We stake our national destiny on their spirit—on their vital morale.

Within camps and naval stations every effort is made to develop morale, not only by military discipline but by programs of recreation, religious service and education.

But when required duties are done for the day, the soldier or sailor naturally is eager to get away from bounds. And when he seeks relaxation in the nearby communities he finds little to do but stand on street corners or yield to the temptation of the questionable forms of recreation offered.

The U. S. O. plans to set up some 360 service clubs adjacent to camps, naval stations and defense industries so that the influence and comfort of the American home community may be brought to those who have been separated from their homes to serve their country.

Excellent leadership, in the selection of Dr. Leonard Rosenzweig and his aides, has been chosen for the campaign in the county. The call is one that comes to all of us—veterans of the last war, mothers and fathers, and the rest who carry on at home while our young men and women give themselves to our defense.

It is a call the county must heed!

The local campaign will start Monday. Be prepared to make your contribution when the solicitor calls upon you!

WEEKLY SERMONETTE

THE FOUNDATION OF OUR LIBERTY

REV. H. BLAIR WARD
Church of the Nazarene, Warren

"We hold these truths to be self evident," wrote the authors of the Declaration of Independence, "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." To maintain these truths, over the comparatively brief history of our nation, we have fought our major wars, conducted innumerable political campaigns, engaged in countless discussions, and gone to the polls many times. They have become a part of our heritage. They have come to represent unto us the American way of life.

Today, as never before in our history, these "certain inalienable rights" are being threatened by armed forces without and by subversive elements within. It is our duty as a people to use every implement at our disposal to counteract these forces and preserve the liberties which are so precious to us. Armaments, soldiers, production, counter-espionage, taxes, legislation and countless other methods of a great nation's supreme effort should be used to build up an impregnable defense against totalitarian enslavement.

However, in all our frenzied preparation, in all our talk about the American way and our priceless liberties, we must remember that our first line of defense is not material, but spiritual. Men must first have something to fight for before they will fight. Giant trees are not easily toppled by the wind, unless decayed at the heart; neither do great nations fail, except internal decay has sapped the spiritual forces that made them great. Saint Paul, in writing to the Galatian Christians, laid down the only principles by which true liberty can endure. He said, "Ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another." (Galatians 5:13).

Liberty is not license. The dope fiend is not free. He is the slave of his drug and a curse to his nation. Liberty is not freedom to do as one pleases regardless of the consequences to one's self or to others. The unprincipled man, ruthlessly exploiting others for his own selfish purpose, is not free. He is the slave of his own greed and is sowing the seed of national bondage. A people cannot long be free who insist on building their lives on the shifting sands of personal license.

Liberty such as we enjoy in this country, if it is to endure, must be voluntarily limited. If it does not voluntarily limit itself, it will eventually be limited from without or within by force. The most satisfactory principles one can find on which to base this voluntary limitation are found in the New Testament and are expressed by St. Paul in the above verse of scripture. My personal liberty ends where the rights of others begin. In fact, true liberty is found in forgetting one's self in service to others. The freest man who ever lived was Christ, and the core of His teaching was service to others. Use your liberty, Paul said, not as an occasion for self-indulgence—"to the flesh"—but use it as an opportunity for service to others—"in love serve one another."

Our nation can be free only as her people are free, and her people will be free only as they practice this first law of liberty—"in love serve one another."

This May Make You Feel Better, but We Doubt It

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, July 5—The war of the 'isolationists against the ex-Republican, ex-Army colonel, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox probably won't reach the shooting stage, even if the Navy itself has accidentally on purpose already taken a shot or two at the Nazis.

When the congressmen, however, get Colonel Knox on the spot for a little questioning by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee on just what has been going on in the Atlantic, they may do a little shouting about the amazing log which the genial secretary with the Sunny Jim grin has written on his shake-down cruises into the unchartered seas of oratory and his test flights in trial balloons.

His record of war-like utterances, climaxed by his most recent and most amazing statement that the U. S. Navy should "clear the Atlantic of the German menace", has left Washington gasping. There is a little talk of impeachment, but that's wild, too. The net score to date is that not once has Secretary Knox had to use parachute or life preserver to get back to the safe harbor of his desk, from which base he just grins broadly, saying nothing, or at the most, "No comment."

What about those men up on the hill who want his scalp

"No comment!"

Did the President okay his speeches?

"No comment."

Is he going to resign?

"I'll let you write your own answer to that."

The answer is that he is not going to resign at all. They'll have to torpedo him out of the job. He loves it. And he has been shipwrecked out on a limb, and had his bow ties fired across before.

Though he is still running an unscheduled race with cotton-mouthed Senator Claude E. Pepper of Tallahassee, Fla., as to who can make the most warlike speeches, there isn't anything new in Knox's line, as a cursory examination of his speeches the last 10 months will show.

In August he was talking about the "international brigands". In October, addressing an FBI graduating class, he was already to go, steam up and a bunker full of coal. "If a fight is forced upon us," he said, "we shall be ready for them. We have never lost a war yet."

A month later, before the New England council, he paid his respects to appeasers with this broadside: "It doesn't fit the American spirit, the American purpose . . . to talk appeasement in a world like this where force and force alone determines the fate of nations. And we will not talk about what we are going to do. We are going to do it, and that speaks louder than words."

In January, before the House Foreign Affairs Committee considering the lease-lend program, as well as in his Armistice Day speech before the American Legion at Columbia, S. C., Knox was ready to defend the entire hemisphere against all comers, and there was only one way to do that. "We should now," he said, "prevent Germany from overturning the British sea power which holds the Nazis in Europe".

Addressing the mid-year graduating class at Annapolis, the secretary made it plain that the middles were in for it. "You are entering your professional life under the shadow of another irreconcilable conflict", he told them. "You go to help occupy the western world's first line of defense. Upon . . . you . . . will rest the future safety of the United States and the entire western hemisphere."

At a recent meeting of the Woman's Club the president, Miss Ella M. Tybout, outlined plans for a financial drive to provide funds to erect a new home for the club. The club now numbers 275 members and a new home will become an absolute necessity in the near future.

Following the meeting of the Warren Lodge of Elks last evening, members were invited to the grill room where they sat down to a muscallonge dinner as guests of Exalted Ruler Herb Onions.

C. L. Shannen, who for the past year has held the position of physical director of the Y. M. C. A., has tendered his resignation to become effective September 1st.

Never before has Warren passed a Fourth of July more quietly than was yesterday. Not even a breeze was stirring to arouse the populace.

Mrs. W. R. Bairstow entertained the members of her bridge club at a one o'clock luncheon today at the Conewango Club.

Many baseball fans here are jubilant over the fact that Corry may have a team this year. Intense rivalry has always existed between the two towns and the local Independens are already seeking a game.

Many of the rose bushes planted along the river bank, between Hickory and Beech streets, are in full bloom, giving some idea of the attractiveness of the beautiful scheme that is being worked out by the Park committee of council and the City Beautiful committee of the Woman's Club.

A group of boys at North Warren are completing plans for a Third Annual Juvenile Circus that will be staged on the lot next to the Rickerson store next Friday afternoon and evening.

What has been aptly termed a "midsummer day's dream" has been arranged by the Woman's Club for Friday afternoon when club members and friends will have a musical tea in the lower gardens of the Olmsted estate at Ludlow.

Casey Jones, local entry in the Clarion auto race meet July Fourth, was unable to compete as his car broke down before the race.

Lorren Carlson, of Hemlock, was bitten in the right hand by a rattlesnake while picking berries near his home this afternoon.

The Pittsburgh Colored Giants will be in Warren next Saturday to engage the Pennsylvanians in their second home game.

• STORIES IN STAMPS

Little Albania Suffers As Modern Battleground

HISTORICALLY a warlike people, the Albanians have seen enough war in a little over two years to last them for centuries.

The stamp above, with the profile of King Victor Emmanuel III of Italy, was issued late in 1939. In March of that year, Italy had marched on Albania and seized the country, forcing King Zog to flee. The Italian king was then proclaimed king of Albania.

Last year, modern warriors again overrode Albania, when Italian forces, attempting to invade Greece, were thrown back into Albania. For several months, Greek troops battled successfully in mountain positions with retreating Italians. This year, Germany swept into the Balkans and Albanian soil became the battleground for troops of at least five foreign nations—British, Greek, Yugoslav, Italian and German.

Until the Balkan war of 1912-13, Albania was nothing more than an undefined region. Territorial limits and self-government were set up following World War I. Zog, who had been president of the Albanian republic, became monarch in 1928.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The President has hung out a new sign. It reads: "Help Wanted—A liaison man in the Senate."

The death of kindly, soft-spoken and well-beloved Sen. Pat Harrison, president pro tem of the Senate, has so further thinned the ranks of loyal senators that the administration reportedly is getting a little frantic about what to do for leadership in the upper chamber.

It isn't that there aren't some men remaining who can be counted on to line up on the right side of the aisle when the chips are being counted. The administration still has a substantial majority as long as the fight is just a skirmish between Democrats and Republicans. But when it develops into a knock-down-and-drag-out, who's going to give the signals, call the plays, and keep the boys from getting off-side?

Sen. James F. Byrnes—the greatest contact man the President ever has had on the Hill—has moved up to the Supreme Court. Pat Harrison is gone to an even higher tribunal.

I've combed the cloakrooms and listened to the rumors. There's hardly any one you could point to and say he's the next President's man.

George Already Busy

SEN. WALTER F. GEORGE, of Georgia, might be the next President pro tem, but Senator George, as chairman of the foreign relations committee, already has his hands full. "President pro tem" never was meant to be anything more than an honorary job anyway and it is only when some senator not otherwise in a key position can be given that post that it means anything.

As for a real "liaison man" (really an anonymous job, because neither legally nor politically is there any such official title), the men most prominently mentioned are Sen. Tom Connally, of Texas; Sen. Scott W. Lucas, of Illinois, and Sen. Lister Hill, of Alabama.

Measured by the political stature of "Jimmy" Byrnes, all of these man fall far short. None of them could be counted on to take a tough assignment and hammer it through heart and soul as Byrnes did. Senators Lucas and Hill haven't the adroitness, the political skill, nor the popularity needed to hit in such pinches. Senator Connally isn't lacking in political sleight-of-hand, but the veteran Texan has tossed so many rough punches and gougings into his opponents that it's hard to expect any consideration if he should approach them now with padded gloves. He hasn't been a consistent President's man, and being a senator of strong convictions, he probably couldn't be counted on to carry the torch for every White House-sponsored issue.

There are others who might be mentioned—but, at this writing, not seriously. Some enterprising senator may come forward and make his place in the sun, but he'll have to start from scratch and not hold up his record as testimony that he deserves the place.

The best guess now is that the President will struggle along without any liaison in the upper house, counting on Sen. Alben Barkley, majority leader, and perhaps Vice President Henry A. Wallace to pass along his off-the-record convictions.

What About Wallace?

JUST the mention of vice President Wallace brings up an important point. From the moment he took the chair as president of the Senate, the Vice President has shucked a lot of corn in making himself the ace of good fellows with the men who look to him for recognition on the floor. Already, he is just about kingpin of the gymnasium gang. He's a popular tennis partner with every senator who knows a net from deuce. And his luncheons, both formal and informal, daily include from one to a score of the men with whom he works.

Just how much this means isn't clear yet, but some observers are saying now that it's possible, with Mr. Wallace in the Senate chair, the President won't need any other liaison man.

THE COMMUNITY MUST HELP

A concrete way for every resident of Warren county to help defend his country is offered in the forthcoming United Service Organizations campaign, plans for which have been announced.

Funds—$3,800 of which is Warren county's quota—are to be used in providing for the wholesome use of leisure time of our men and women in uniform and workers in new defense centers. The program will be administered jointly by six organizations whose past records are well known—the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Salvation Army, the Catholic Community Service, the Jewish Welfare Board and the Travelers' Aid Society.

The youth of our nation is the core of our defense.

More than 1,500,000 young Americans are in uniform today.

Over 2,000,000 others, many of them young people, are engaged in our new defense industries.

These are our defenders. We stake our national destiny on their spirit—on their vital morale.

Within camps and naval stations every effort is made to develop morale, not only by military discipline but by programs of recreation, religious service and education.

But when required duties are done for the day, the soldier or sailor naturally is eager to get away from bounds. And when he seeks relaxation in the nearby communities he finds little to do but stand on street corners or yield to the temptation of the questionable forms of recreation offered.

The U. S. O. plans to set up some 360 service clubs adjacent to camps, naval stations and defense industries so that the influence and comfort of the American home community may be brought to those who have been separated from their homes to serve their country.

Excellent leadership, in the selection of Dr. Leonard Rosenzweig and his aides, has been chosen for the campaign in the county. The call is one that comes to all of us—veterans of the last war, mothers and fathers, and the rest who carry on at home while our young men and women give themselves to our defense.

It is a call the county must heed!

The local campaign will start Monday. Be prepared to make your contribution when the solicitor calls upon you!

WEEKLY SERMONETTE

THE FOUNDATION OF OUR LIBERTY

REV. H. BLAIR WARD
Church of the Nazarene, Warren

"We hold these truths to be self evident," wrote the authors of the Declaration of Independence, "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." To maintain these truths, over the comparatively brief history of our nation, we have fought our major wars, conducted innumerable political campaigns, engaged in countless discussions, and gone to the polls many times. They have become a part of our heritage. They have come to represent unto us the American way of life.

Today, as never before in our history, these "certain inalienable rights" are being threatened by armed forces without and by subversive elements within. It is our duty as a people to use every implement at our disposal to counteract these forces and preserve the liberties which are so precious to us. Armaments, soldiers, production, counter-espionage, taxes, legislation and countless other methods of a great nation's supreme effort should be used to build up an impregnable defense against totalitarian enslavement.

However, in all our frenzied preparation, in all our talk about the American way and our priceless liberties, we must remember that our first line of defense is not material, but spiritual. Men must first have something to fight for before they will fight. Giant trees are not easily toppled by the wind, unless decayed at the heart; neither do great nations fail, except internal decay has sapped the spiritual forces that made them great. Saint Paul, in writing to the Galatian Christians, laid down the only principles by which true liberty can endure. He said, "Ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another." (Galatians 5:13).

Liberty is not license. The dope fiend is not free. He is the slave of his drug and a curse to his nation. Liberty is not freedom to do as one pleases regardless of the consequences to one's self or to others. The unprincipled man, ruthlessly exploiting others for his own selfish purpose, is not free. He is the slave of his own greed and is sowing the seed of national bondage. A people cannot long be free who insist on building their lives on the shifting sands of personal license.

Liberty such as we enjoy in this country, if it is to endure, must be voluntarily limited. If it does not voluntarily limit itself, it will eventually be limited from without or within by force. The most satisfactory principles one can find on which to base this voluntary limitation are found in the New Testament and are expressed by St. Paul in the above verse of scripture. My personal liberty ends where the rights of others begin. In fact, true liberty is found in forgetting one's self in service to others. The freest man who ever lived was Christ, and the core of His teaching was service to others. Use your liberty, Paul said, not as an occasion for self-indulgence—"to the flesh"—but use it as an opportunity for service to others—"in love serve one another."

Our nation can be free only as her people are free, and her people will be free only as they practice this first law of liberty—"in love serve one another."

This May Make You Feel Better, but We Doubt It

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, July 5—The war of the 'isolationists against the ex-Republican, ex-Army colonel, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox probably won't reach the shooting stage, even if the Navy itself has accidentally on purpose already taken a shot or two at the Nazis.

When the congressmen, however, get Colonel Knox on the spot for a little questioning by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee on just what has been going on in the Atlantic, they may do a little shouting about the amazing log which the genial secretary with the Sunny Jim grin has written on his shake-down cruises into the unchartered seas of oratory and his test flights in trial balloons.

His record of war-like utterances, climaxed by his most recent and most amazing statement that the U. S. Navy should "clear the Atlantic of the German menace", has left Washington gasping. There is a little talk of impeachment, but that's wild, too. The net score to date is that not once has Secretary Knox had to use parachute or life preserver to get back to the safe harbor of his desk, from which base he just grins broadly, saying nothing, or at the most, "No comment."

What about those men up on the hill who want his scalp

"No comment!"

Did the President okay his speeches?

"No comment."

Is he going to resign?

"I'll let you write your own answer to that."

The answer is that he is not going to resign at all. They'll have to torpedo him out of the job. He loves it. And he has been shipwrecked out on a limb, and had his bow ties fired across before.

Though he is still running an unscheduled race with cotton-mouthed Senator Claude E. Pepper of Tallahassee, Fla., as to who can make the most warlike speeches, there isn't anything new in Knox's line, as a cursory examination of his speeches the last 10 months will show.

In August he was talking about the "international brigands". In October, addressing an FBI graduating class, he was already to go, steam up and a bunker full of coal. "If a fight is forced upon us," he said, "we shall be ready for them. We have never lost a war yet."

A month later, before the New England council, he paid his respects to appeasers with this broadside: "It doesn't fit the American spirit, the American purpose . . . to talk appeasement in a world like this where force and force alone determines the fate of nations. And we will not talk about what we are going to do. We are going to do it, and that speaks louder than words."

In January, before the House Foreign Affairs Committee considering the lease-lend program, as well as in his Armistice Day speech before the American Legion at Columbia, S. C., Knox was ready to defend the entire hemisphere against all comers, and there was only one way to do that. "We should now," he said, "prevent Germany from overturning the British sea power which holds the Nazis in Europe".

Addressing the mid-year graduating class at Annapolis, the secretary made it plain that the middies were in for it. "You are entering your professional life under the shadow of another irreconcilable conflict", he told them. "You go to help occupy the western world's first line of defense. Upon . . . you . . . will rest the future safety of the United States and the entire western hemisphere."

• STORIES IN STAMPS

Little Albania Suffers As Modern Battleground

HISTORICALLY a warlike people, the Albanians have seen enough war in a little over two years to last them for centuries.

The stamp above, with the profile of King Victor Emmanuel III of Italy, was issued late in 1939. In March of that year, Italy had marched on Albania and seized the country, forcing King Zog to flee. The Italian king was then proclaimed king of Albania.

Last year, modern warriors again overrode Albania, when Italian forces, attempting to invade Greece, were thrown back into Albania. For several months, Greek troops battled successfully in mountain positions with retreating Italians. This year, Germany swept into the Balkans and Albanian soil became the battleground for troops of at least five foreign nations—British, Greek, Yugoslav, Italian and German.

Until the Balkan war of 1912-13, Albania was nothing more than an undefined region. Territorial limits and self-government were set up following World War I. Zog, who had been president of the Albanian republic, became monarch in 1928.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The President has hung out a new sign. It reads: "Help Wanted—A liaison man in the Senate."

The death of kindly, soft-spoken and well-beloved Sen. Pat Harrison, president pro tem of the Senate, has so further thinned the ranks of loyal senators that the administration reportedly is getting a little frantic about what to do for leadership in the upper chamber.

It isn't that there aren't some men remaining who can be counted on to line up on the right side of the aisle when the chips are being counted. The administration still has a substantial majority as long as the fight is just a skirmish between Democrats and Republicans. But when it develops into a knock-down-and-drag-out, who's going to give the signals, call the plays, and keep the boys from getting off-side?

Sen. James F. Byrnes—the greatest contact man the President ever has had on the Hill—has moved up to the Supreme Court. Pat Harrison is gone to an even higher tribunal.

I've combed the cloakrooms and listened to the rumors. There's hardly any one you could point to and say he's the next President's man.

George Already Busy

SEN. WALTER F. GEORGE, of Georgia, might be the next President pro tem, but Senator George, as chairman of the foreign relations committee, already has his hands full. "President pro tem" never was meant to be anything more than an honorary job anyway and it is only when some senator not otherwise in a key position can be given that post that it means anything.

As for a real "liaison man" (really an anonymous job, because neither legally nor politically is there any such official title), the men most prominently mentioned are Sen. Tom Connally, of Texas; Sen. Scott W. Lucas, of Illinois, and Sen. Lister Hill, of Alabama.

Measured by the political stature of "Jimmy" Byrnes, all of these man fall far short. None of them could be counted on to take a tough assignment and hammer it through heart and soul as Byrnes did. Senators Lucas and Hill haven't the adroitness, the political skill, nor the popularity needed to hit in such pinches. Senator Connally isn't lacking in political sleight-of-hand, but the veteran Texan has tossed so many rough punches and gougings into his opponents that it's hard to expect any consideration if he should approach them now with padded gloves. He hasn't been a consistent President's man, and being a senator of strong convictions, he probably couldn't be counted on to carry the torch for every White House-sponsored issue.

There are others who might be mentioned—but, at this writing, not seriously. Some enterprising senator may come forward and make his place in the sun, but he'll have to start from scratch and not hold up his record as testimony that he deserves the place.

The best guess now is that the President will struggle along without any liaison in the upper house, counting on Sen. Alben Barkley, majority leader, and perhaps Vice President Henry A. Wallace to pass along his off-the-record convictions.

What About Wallace?

JUST the mention of vice President Wallace brings up an important point. From the moment he took the chair as president of the Senate, the Vice President has shucked a lot of corn in making himself the ace of good fellows with the men who look to him for recognition on the floor. Already, he is just about kingpin of the gymnasium gang. He's a popular tennis partner with every senator who knows a net from deuce. And his luncheons, both formal and informal, daily include from one to a score of the men with whom he works.

Just how much this means isn't clear yet, but some observers are saying now that it's possible, with Mr. Wallace in the Senate chair, the President won't need any other liaison man.

Yet all those persons who lie awake nights, he said, "know full well that in these days we cannot save freedom with pitchforks and muskets alone, after a dictator combination has gained control of the rest of the world."

And because freedom cannot be preserved in America if it is lost in all the neighbor nations, he said, this country is engaged in a serious, mighty, unified action in the cause of the defense of the western hemisphere and the freedom of the seas.

Freddie Gagliardi Wins Pitching Duel Over Akron Outfit

In one big inning the National Forge shot its fireworks display at Irvine yesterday and scored four times to settle their Independence Day ball game with the Akron Goodyears and they won 6 to 2, before a good sized holiday crowd.

Freddie Gagliardi handcuffed the Goodyears, held them without a hit in the first three innings, gave up four hits and one run in the next two cantos, and then bore down once more to hold a lead which his mates gave him via a four run uprising in the fifth inning.

The Akron outfit used three pitchers during the fracas, and the second one to walk out on the firing line, was shelled with plenty of Forge lead as Beemans, the victim, was tagged for six runs and six hits in his three inning mound trick.

"Emmy" Morrison made it easier for the Forgers in that fifth inning when he belted a double with the bases loaded and two out, to put the Irvine outfit in the lead after they were trailing 1 to 0.

It was more or less a true pitchers' battle, for the Forge only claimed eight hits in the entire game, but their bingles came when they did the most good.

Mike Solock and Morrison connected for the only doubles in the ball game, while Carroll and Buttermore, both Goodyear players, hit the only triples, each had one. And those three base hits, fortunately for the Forge, both came when the bases were empty.

There is no game at Irvine tomorrow, but a doubleheader is slated for next Sunday afternoon when the Gas House Gang of semi-pro ball, Ford City, comes to Irvine for what should be two really hot contests.

THE LEADING MAN

LOUIS ADMITS HE'S SLIPPED IN PAST YEAR

Detroit, July 5—(AP)—Fistic experts who contend that Joe Louis has slowed down had the word of the heavyweight champion today that "I ain't near the fighter I used to be".

Between rounds of golf, before he left yesterday to play in a tournament at Pittsburgh, the negro battler took stock of himself.

"I guess I'se slipped pretty far", he said with deadpan seriousness. "Won't know how far until my next fight with Lou Nova in September."

Then, without batting an eye, he added:

"If I find then I'se slipped too far, I'll give it all up. Ain't no use goin' on—just to get punched around."

His reason for thinking he had lost some of his ring acumen and dynamite punch?

"Why," he answered, "what happened in the (Billy) Conn fight. I have him in the third round and again in the fifth, but I can't finish him. I knew then that I'se slipped. Chappie (Jack Blackburn, his trainer) kept telling me that no little fellow should beat me, especially no little fellow who was 25 pounds lighter'n me.

"But I can't stop him till the thirteenth round. Then, I think it was Conn who beat hisself. He fight hisself out in the twelfth and then I finish him in the thirteenth."

What has caused him to slip?

"Dunno for sure," said Louis. "Guess it was a couple of things. I been working too hard. I been in training since November 13 and ain't had but one little vacation of two weeks between fights."

Pittsburgh, July 5—(AP)—Heavyweight Champ Joe Louis, dropping into Billy Conn's home town for a golf tournament today, said Billy is the best boxer he has ever swapped punches with.

"If he would box them all, and keep boxing, why I guess he would beat them," opined the Brown Bomber in his vernacular. "But mebbe he couldn't keep outboxing them all the time and they would catch up with him and hit him good."

He conceded he was behind in his own fight with Conn "until I knock him out".

Louis predicted that if he meets Conn again this year, "I would beat him quicker than I did in the first bout."

"But next year is a different thing," he added. "I don't figure to be any better next year than I am now. That's because I'm older than Conn and he's young yet." (He's 27, Conn 23).

Louis plans to do less fighting after he meets Lou Nova, saying that his heavy calendar of the past seven months was too much.

The champ came here to compete in the annual Eastern Golf Association tournament at South Park.

SPORT SCATTERINGS

Father Time played a part in the Casey-Boys' Club softball game in the City League last Wednesday night, when Harry Wooster matched pitches with 15-year-old Vito Greto—and lost to the youthful hurler, who in a few years should be one of Warren's greatest tossers. Harry chucked the pill over the entire route, but we remember the day when softball was at its height in this community, and Harry Wooster had more stuff on the ball than Dagwood can put on a sandwich. However, those days are now but pleasant memories and Wooster, though he still likes the game, has naturally slowed up somewhat. The Boys' Club got at him nearly at will Wednesday evening until they had a lead built up which was plenty safe. Now, we don't say that Wooster should announce his retirement; he's no old man. But his pitches don't have the zip they used to have, and still we'd bet on him to win as many as he loses this season.

On the other side of the fence is Greto. Everything is before the "kid" and he's got the makings of a really fine pitcher. He's not experienced at pitching in a game with a bunch of softball veterans, who know plenty of tricks about the game, and likewise Vito gets a little nervous at the start. But the way he bears down after he once gets under way is something to marvel at when you consider that Greto is only 15. There's only one matter which will worry those who are trying to develop the youngster. That is, he may throw his arm out by trying to pour too much steam down the lane before he's ready for that kind of pitching. It isn't necessary for him to go out there with the do or die spirit of winning games, because the City League is made up of fellows who are playing purely because they love the game. As far as the final standings are concerned, it will make very little difference which team ends on top. Of course, the players are in there to win, but it's really not so important that Greto, or any other pitcher, will have to wear himself out just to bring home the flag.

NATION'S BEST PROS TO START IN PGA TOURNEY

Denver, July 5—(AP)—While the country's topflight professionals continued to sharpen their games today for their private golfing party, the P. G. A. championship opening Monday, the sideline experts searched the entry list for a darkhorse capable of wedging into the winner's circle.

Three outsiders were turned up in the pre-tournament size-up whose talents were judged sufficiently high to give the big boys a fair run for the money when the field of more than a hundred gets off in the first qualifying round at Cherry Hills.

They were Charley Sheppard, who shifted from Philadelphia to Omaha a few months ago; Lean Mark Fry, California Open champion, and Henry Ranson, a straight hitting Texan not so well known to the general golfing public.

Sheppard, blessed with a brilliant short game, and Fry, from Oakland, are noted as unusually fine position players. Ranson enjoys a similar reputation in his area. Their games are made to order for a course like Cherry Hills, scene of the 1938 National Open, where almost every shot must be played to a spot.

The trio, however, were among the majority of tnerants on hand whose chances were so slight they were classed as 50 to 1 shots.

Top favorite's role belonged to Ben Hogan, the ex-Texas caddy. Hogan was the country's leading money winner last year. Tomorrow at Cherry Hills he will be presented with the Harry Vardon Trophy, emblematic of the nation's low scoring golfer for 1940. The trophy weighs 140 pounds and incidentally is two pounds heavier then Little Ben.

As 6 to 1 choice, with one over par for seven practice rounds to date, Hogan's chances were liked better than those of the defending champion, Byron Nelson, and Craig Wood, winner last month of the 1941 National Open crown. They were placed at 7-1, pending arrival and whirl at the course. The two were due in today. Nelson jammed his finger in an auto door last week, losing a nail and there was no doubt but what the injury would handicap his play.

Ralph Guldahl, two time former National Open king who won his last one on this same course in 1938, has been on his stick since arrival, so much so he confidently predicted he would be in the thick of the fight.

The course will be open to practice Sunday, when such elders as Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen are expected to get in a practice lick.

Pittsfield Host to Warren In Opener

The Marconi Club baseball team opens in the Interstate League at Pittsfield tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Floyd Kifer, it was announced by the management today, will draw the starting mound assignment.

The remainder of the team will probably be lined up as follows: Clawson, first base; Dahler, second base; Brown, shortstop; Reading, third base; Jensen, Riggs, and Williams will be in the outfield.

On Friday, July 11, the Marconi crew meets the Eagles at Sheffield in the first battle this year between the young district aggregations.

New Yorkers Rained Out; Cards Beaten, Brooks Regain Lead

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

You might think being in first place at the close of business on July Fourth didn't mean a thing to the St. Louis Cardinals—and you might be right.

They blew a double-header to the Chicago Cubs yesterday and turned the National League lead over exclusively to the Brooklyn Dodgers, who were kept in their locker room by an all-day rain.

Tradition has it that the teams in first place on Independence Day go on to win the pennants, but last year the Dodgers and Cleveland Indians came away from the fireworks in front of the parade—and everybody knows they finished second.

This knowledge must have been some consolation to the Cardinals in losing all three games of their series with the Cubs, who thrilled a crowd of 39,423 fans at Chicago by rallying to take both of yesterday's contests, 6-5 and 5-2. This left the Redbirds a game out of the lead.

St. Louis, outhitting the Cubs 13-8 in the opener, had a two-run lead in the eighth. Then Babe Dahlgren, cast off by both the New York Yankees and Boston Braves, came through with his 12th home run of the season to tie the score. Chicago pushed across another marker to win.

In the nightcap Clyde Shoun was steaming along with a 2-0 advantage when the Cubs suddenly sprang a four-run rally. Bill Nicholson contributed a double to this uprising and later hit his 15th home run of the season.

The rain that washed out the Dodgers and New York Giants also prevented the New York Yankees-Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox-Philadelphia Athletics encounters in the American League and held total attendance for the holiday baseball program down to 134,114.

The Cleveland Indians whipped the St. Louis Browns twice, 9-8 and 3-2, to reduce the Yankees' margin to two games. The Browns routed Bob Feller in the first tilt. They tapped him for nine hits in 6 1-3 innings and came up to the last half of the ninth leading, 8-4. Then the Indians went on the warpath with a five-run rally that included a three-run homer by Ken Keltner and was climaxed by Jeff Heath stealing home with the winning run. The Browns made five erorrs.

The second game, limited to seven innings by agreement, was won on Lou Boudreau's two-run double in the seventh.

In one big inning the National Forge shot its fireworks display at Irvine yesterday and scored four times to settle their Independence Day ball game with the Akron Goodyears and they won 6 to 2, before a good sized holiday crowd.

Freddie Gagliardi handcuffed the Goodyears, held them without a hit in the first three innings, gave up four hits and one run in the next two cantos, and then bore down once more to hold a lead which his mates gave him via a four run uprising in the fifth inning.

The Akron outfit used three pitchers during the fracas, and the second one to walk out on the firing line, was shelled with plenty of Forge lead as Beemans, the victim, was tagged for six runs and six hits in his three inning mound trick.

"Emmy" Morrison made it easier for the Forgers in that fifth inning when he belted a double with the bases loaded and two out, to put the Irvine outfit in the lead after they were trailing 1 to 0.

It was more or less a true pitchers' battle, for the Forge only claimed eight hits in the entire game, but their bingles came when they did the most good.

Mike Solock and Morrison connected for the only doubles in the ball game, while Carroll and Buttermore, both Goodyear players, hit the only triples, each had one. And those three base hits, fortunately for the Forge, both came when the bases were empty.

There is no game at Irvine tomorrow, but a doubleheader is slated for next Sunday afternoon when the Gas House Gang of semi-pro ball, Ford City, comes to Irvine for what should be two really hot contests.

THE LEADING MAN

LOUIS ADMITS HE'S SLIPPED IN PAST YEAR

Detroit, July 5—(AP)—Fistic experts who contend that Joe Louis has slowed down had the word of the heavyweight champion today that "I ain't near the fighter I used to be".

Between rounds of golf, before he left yesterday to play in a tournament at Pittsburgh, the negro battler took stock of himself.

"I guess I'se slipped pretty far", he said with deadpan seriousness. "Won't know how far until my next fight with Lou Nova in September."

Then, without batting an eye, he added:

"If I find then I'se slipped too far, I'll give it all up. Ain't no use goin' on—just to get punched around."

His reason for thinking he had lost some of his ring acumen and dynamite punch?

"Why," he answered, "what happened in the (Billy) Conn fight. I have him in the third round and again in the fifth, but I can't finish him. I knew then that I'se slipped. Chappie (Jack Blackburn, his trainer) kept telling me that no little fellow should beat me, especially no little fellow who was 25 pounds lighter'n me.

"But I can't stop him till the thirteenth round. Then, I think it was Conn who beat hisself. He fight hisself out in the twelfth and then I finish him in the thirteenth."

What has caused him to slip?

"Dunno for sure," said Louis. "Guess it was a couple of things. I been working too hard. I been in training since November 13 and ain't had but one little vacation of two weeks between fights."

Pittsburgh, July 5—(AP)—Heavyweight Champ Joe Louis, dropping into Billy Conn's home town for a golf tournament today, said Billy is the best boxer he has ever swapped punches with.

"If he would box them all, and keep boxing, why I guess he would beat them," opined the Brown Bomber in his vernacular. "But mebbe he couldn't keep outboxing them all the time and they would catch up with him and hit him good."

He conceded he was behind in his own fight with Conn "until I knock him out".

Louis predicted that if he meets Conn again this year, "I would beat him quicker than I did in the first bout."

"But next year is a different thing," he added. "I don't figure to be any better next year than I am now. That's because I'm older than Conn and he's young yet." (He's 27, Conn 23).

Louis plans to do less fighting after he meets Lou Nova, saying that his heavy calendar of the past seven months was too much.

The champ came here to compete in the annual Eastern Golf Association tournament at South Park.

SPORT SPATTERINGS

Father Time played a part in the Casey-Boys' Club softball game in the City League last Wednesday night, when Harry Wooster matched pitches with 15-year-old Vito Greto—and lost to the youthful hurler, who in a few years should be one of Warren's greatest tossers. Harry chucked the pill over the entire route, but we remember the day when softball was at its height in this community, and Harry Wooster had more stuff on the ball than Dagwood can put on a sandwich. However, those days are now but pleasant memories and Wooster, though he still likes the game, has naturally slowed up somewhat. The Boys' Club got at him nearly at will Wednesday evening until they had a lead built up which was plenty safe. Now, we don't say that Wooster should announce his retirement; he's no old man. But his pitches don't have the zip they used to have, and still we'd bet on him to win as many as he loses this season.

On the other side of the fence is Greto. Everything is before the "kid" and he's got the makings of a really fine pitcher. He's not experienced at pitching in a game with a bunch of softball veterans, who know plenty of tricks about the game, and likewise Vito gets a little nervous at the start. But the way he bears down after he once gets under way is something to marvel at when you consider that Greto is only 15. There's only one matter which will worry those who are trying to develop the youngster. That is, he may throw his arm out by trying to pour too much steam down the lane before he's ready for that kind of pitching. It isn't necessary for him to go out there with the do or die spirit of winning games, because the City League is made up of fellows who are playing purely because they love the game. As far as the final standings are concerned, it will make very little difference which team ends on top. Of course, the players are in there to win, but it's really not so important that Greto, or any other pitcher, will have to wear himself out just to bring home the flag.

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Question.—What is God? Answer. God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love, Question.—Are these terms synonymous? Answer.—They are. They refer to one absolute God. They are also intended to express the nature, essence, and wholeness of Deity" (p. 465).

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

He has not, however, been one to let the other fellows do all the fighting. "I would rather die fighting Hitler than live under his rule," he told the conference of mayors at St. Louis in February.

The war took on a holy aspect to the secretary in the spring. "God help us, God forgive us," he prayed, "if we don't bear our share in the fight for the control of the seas against human slavery". Concluding a speech in Washington, he emphasized that the war would call for sacrifices matching those made by any American generation that has gone before. "It is going to take all that we have", he concluded.

"I humbly pray God that we shall match up, with our courage and resolution, to that which has been demonstrated over in that tight little isle from which so many of us have descended."

Knox was among the first to beat the drums for convoys. "It is pretty idle to discuss whether or not convoys are in accord with international law," he blandly assured a meeting of military engineers. "There is an enemy of all civilization abroad in this world, and can we afford to be anywhere else but among those who oppose that enemy? We have said we were among those who oppose, and we should make our opposition felt, whatever the price may be."

From there, it was only a step to his declaration at the end of June: "Now is the time to put in motion the huge machine we have been building since the war began".

Some of the Army gold-braiders in Washington can be heard to mutter through their teeth "what machine?" but Colonel Knox is in the Navy now.

When bees started a honeycomb in a control box, telephone service in a Connecticut town was disrupted.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—"One fight a year," says Steve Hannagan, advertising expert and man about Broadway. "One fight a year, provided the names are good, is all right. Anything more than this is bad."

What Steve means is that if John Barrymore wants to walk into the Stork club and poke Clark Gable in the eye, that's all right. The newspapers will carry pleasant accounts of the adventure and it will be good publicity for the Stork. But if people whose names don't mean anything make a habit of turning the Stork into a cockpit, that's bad. It keeps people away.

Tucker Checks

I was talking to Sherman Billingsley, owner of the Stork, about this, and he said: "You hear lots of accounts of fights here and elsewhere, but most of them are faked. That 'fight' between Peggy Hopkins Joyce and an ex-Yale crew man the other night was strictly a phoney, a press agent stunt. They weren't fighting."

That's an interesting point, because scores of celebrities at one time or another have figured in public face-slappings in the prints; and yet, when you run them down, most of them turn out to be vague affairs which seldom measure up to their advance billing.

Some time ago the word went round that Warden Lawes of Sing Sing and Richard Maney, a theatrical press agent, had come to blows in the Stork and that Lawes had floored Maney with a right to the jaw. As a matter of record, Maney and Lawes are the best of friends and Maney merely missed his chair when he went to sit down and tumbled to the floor.

Tha' Hemingway K.O.

Johnny Weissmuller and a naval officer had a scrap one night but it ended on the tame note of the officer's cap being knocked off. They started out into the street to finish the matter but the waiters stopped them and everything was smoothed over. Later George White, the producer, and Sid Solomon were with a party of four at the Stork, and White leaned across the table and slapped Solomon's face.

On another occasion Ernest Hemingway was at the bar when a drunk came in, occupied an adjoining stool, and pushed his hand across Hemingway's face. Hemingway reached over and pushed the drunk off the stool, and that's all there was to it. Yet next day on Broadway Hemingway was credited with a flashy knockout. Hemingway's name is a good one, and especially did it fit into this account, for he had just emerged from a sensational fist fight in the offices of his publishers with Max Eastman, the author of "Enjoyment of Laughter."

Incidents such as this are not frowned on by the managements of such places as the Stork, or Twenty-One, or El Morocco. After all, you feel a friendly, personal interest in the spectacle of an impasse between such heroes as, well, say Robert Montgomery and Jimmy Stewart. It's a good drawing card.

But the brawls themselves, I mean the brawls for keeps between two guys whose names are just Joe . . . well, as Steve Hannagan says, "One fight a year is all right, but anything more than that is bad."

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

He has not, however, been one to let the other fellows do all the fighting. "I would rather die fighting Hitler than live under his rule," he told the conference of mayors at St. Louis in February.

The war took on a holy aspect to the secretary in the spring. "God help us, God forgive us," he prayed, "if we don't bear our share in the fight for the control of the seas against human slavery". Concluding a speech in Washington, he emphasized that the war would call for sacrifices matching those made by any American generation that has gone before. "It is going to take all that we have", he concluded.

"I humbly pray God that we shall match up, with our courage and resolution, to that which has been demonstrated over in that tight little isle from which so many of us have descended."

Knox was among the first to beat the drums for convoys. "It is pretty idle to discuss whether or not convoys are in accord with international law," he blandly assured a meeting of military engineers. "There is an enemy of all civilization abroad in this world, and can we afford to be anywhere else but among those who oppose that enemy? We have said we were among those who oppose, and we should make our opposition felt, whatever the price may be."

From there, it was only a step to his declaration at the end of June: "Now is the time to put in motion the huge machine we have been building since the war began".

Some of the Army gold-braiders in Washington can be heard to mutter through their teeth "what machine?" but Colonel Knox is in the Navy now.

When bees started a honeycomb in a control box, telephone service in a Connecticut town was disrupted.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—"One fight a year," says Steve Hannagan, advertising expert and man about Broadway. "One fight a year, provided the names are good, is all right. Anything more than this is bad."

What Steve means is that if John Barrymore wants to walk into the Stork club and poke Clark Gable in the eye, that's all right. The newspapers will carry pleasant accounts of the adventure and it will be good publicity for the Stork. But if people whose names don't mean anything make a habit of turning the Stork into a cockpit, that's bad. It keeps people away.

Tucker Checks

I was talking to Sherman Billingsley, owner of the Stork, about this, and he said: "You hear lots of accounts of fights here and elsewhere, but most of them are faked. That 'fight' between Peggy Hopkins Joyce and an ex-Yale crew man the other night was strictly a phoney, a press agent stunt. They weren't fighting."

That's an interesting point, because scores of celebrities at one time or another have figured in public face-slappings in the prints; and yet, when you run them down, most of them turn out to be vague affairs which seldom measure up to their advance billing.

Some time ago the word went round that Warden Lawes of Sing Sing and Richard Maney, a theatrical press agent, had come to blows in the Stork and that Lawes had floored Maney with a right to the jaw. As a matter of record, Maney and Lawes are the best of friends and Maney merely missed his chair when he went to sit down and tumbled to the floor.

Tha Hemingway K.O.

Johnny Weissmuller and a naval officer had a scrap one night but it ended on the tame note of the officer's cap being knocked off. They started out into the street to finish the matter but the waiters stopped them and everything was smoothed over. Later George White, the producer, and Sid Solomon were with a party of four at the Stork, and White leaned across the table and slapped Solomon's face.

On another occasion Ernest Hemingway was at the bar when a drunk came in, occupied an adjoining stool, and pushed his hand across Hemingway's face. Hemingway reached over and pushed the drunk off the stool, and that's all there was to it. Yet next day on Broadway Hemingway was credited with a flashy knockout. Hemingway's name is a good one, and especially did it fit into this account, for he had just emerged from a sensational fist fight in the offices of his publishers with Max Eastman, the author of "Enjoyment of Laughter."

Incidents such as this are not frowned on by the managements of such places as the Stork, or Twenty-One, or El Morocco. After all, you feel a friendly, personal interest in the spectacle of an impasse between such heroes as, well, say Robert Montgomery and Jimmy Stewart. It's a good drawing card.

But the brawls themselves, I mean the brawls for keeps between two guys whose names are just Joe . . . well, as Steve Hannagan says, "One fight a year is all right, but anything more than that is bad."

Blows Against German Ports Are Increasing

At the same time, coastal command bombers raided the coast of southern Norway, the Air Ministry said, setting fire to docks and shipping at Haugesund and to a factory and the waterfront at Kristiansand.

Bomb explosions straddling Germany's repeatedly-attacked battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the big Nazi cruiser Prinz Eugen, raiding companion of the sunken Bismarck, were scored in a night raid on the harbor at Brest, the British Air Ministry said.

In the same sweep along the Nazi-held French coast the RAF was said to have blasted the U-boat base at Lorient, pouring explosives among moored submarines and damaging docks and buildings.

The Ministry said other flights attacked docks at Cherbourg, railroad yards at Abbeville and Rhineland industrial targets.

The attacks were the 24th by the RAF in the past 26 nights.

The 10,000-ton Prinz Eugen was said by the British to have taken refuge at Brest, damaged and cut off from safer harbors, when she eluded the cordon of British warships out to avenge the battle cruiser Hood.

The 26,000-ton sister ships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst have been bombed repeatedly by the RAF since they took refuge at Brest weeks ago.

The raiders reported shooting down two German fighters and said four of their own planes were missing.

The Germans bombed the industrial Midlands in their sharpest raids of the summer. Some west Midlands sections had their first bombings in nearly two months. Casualties were reported in at least two towns.

Sections of southwest and western England and south Wales also were attacked.

The British said three of the German raiders were shot down.

Berlin, July 5.—(AP)—British air raiders destroyed the 100-foot high Canadian World War monument at Brest in attacks last night on that Nazi-occupied French port, informed sources declared today.

(The British indicated that Brest, where they say Nazi warships have been sheltering, was one of their overnight targets.)

800 Selectees Will Reach Gap Over Week-end

Guard troops absorbing them.

The 28th Division's first selectees—452 artillerymen from Fort Bragg, N. C., meanwhile, are enjoying their first weekend at home since induction into Uncle Sam's army some three months ago.

The 452—made up of 200-odd men from Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania, 100-odd from Philadelphia and the remainder from Texas, New York, New Jersey, North Carolina, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Ohio and Michigan, joined the 28th's 53rd Artillery Brigade Wednesday.

After a day given over to classification practically all of them left for home Thursday evening.

Since about 75 per cent of the soldiers here have been given extended holiday weekends off, the camp was practically deserted today. Things will pick up Sunday, however, when the 800 infantrymen are expected to check in from Camp Croft. Weather permitting, they will be classified outdoors in accordance with a new plan devised by officers.

Witnesses said the flames licked as high as 22 stories, sighting this height on nearby taller buildings.

In January, 1941, deliveries of American planes to the British were 419—one and one-half times the total of deliveries during the first six months of 1940.

POSSIBILITY OF SOFT COAL WALKOUT FADES

By the Associated Press

Possibility of a walkout of 150,000 southern soft coal miners appeared to be fading today as plenary committees of owners and workers gathered in the capital to talk over their differences.

John L. Lewis, president of the CIO United Mine Workers, and L. Ebersole Gaines, representative of the operators in the southern area said negotiations for a settlement of the dispute were progressing, and indicated there may be no strike Tuesday.

The comparatively minor details of contract wording—the operators already having agreed to an abandonment of the old 40-cent daily wage differential with the north—appeared to be the only hurdle.

As mine owners and employes sought to reach agreement in Washington, negotiations started at Alton, Ill., between the management of the Western Cartridge Company and the AFL Chemical Workers on the question of collective bargaining representation. The firm holds large ammunition contracts.

Members of the dairy farmers union in New York, Vermont and Pennsylvania, who seek higher prices for milk shipped to New York City, sent representatives of 23,000 producers to confer with Owen D. Young, retired industrialist, who owns a farm in New York. They hope to bring about a rise in price to a uniform figure of $3 per hundred weight, or 4¢ quarts, as compared with an estimated price of $2.15 for this month.

Boasting a membership of 30,000, the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association has discussed joining the union members in withholding milk from the market provided the groups, acting jointly under Young's leadership, can establish some objective and a practicable way to achieve it.

how close the hard-driven German spearheads were to the deep Russian defense belt differed, but the test appeared to be shaping up on the shortest line to Moscow—east of Dvinsk, and between the Berezina and Dnepr rivers toward Mogilev and Vitebsk.

A Russian communique declared the Germans had been unable to cross the Berezina despite three days of unceasing assault, but acknowledged the withdrawal of Red troops under heavy pressure in the lake-dotted region to the north.

In this sector, the Russians declared, they were forced back from the Dvinsk area toward the fortification system inside old Russia south of Pskov, and from Lepel in northern White Russia, within 70 miles of the forts centered about Vitebsk.

On the southern front the Red Army was reported in Moscow to be standing firm against an onset by numerically-superior forces driving toward the old Ukraine at Tarnopol.

A Moscow radio broadcast said the gains had cost the Germans almost 750,000 men killed, wounded and captured and asserted "the best divisions of the German army have been smashed."

The Germans, however, reported crossing the Berezina river in several places, rolling on toward the Dnepr and the Stalin Line little more than 50 miles to the east.

No One Wants Job as Mayor of Uniontown

mayor within the 30-day period prescribed by City Solicitor Frank Lane, the problem now goes to common please court, which will appoint the city's chief executive when a taxpayer's petition so requests.

The fuss started when Major William J. Crow, Republican mayor for more than three years, left June 4 for army duty at Aberdeen, Md.

At its June 24 meeting, the four-member council deadlocked 2-2 on the nomination of Charles A. Ellis, music store proprietor, for mayor. Council met again Thursday night—eve of the 30-day deadline—and voted on the nomination of Ellis and four other men, but deadlocked each time, no nominee being strong enough to win a majority. The voting did not follow party lines, council comprising three Republicans and one Democrat.

of a convoy, although depth charges were dropping around it at the time.

"The sailors told us they saw the submarine shoot, but we didn't see it ourselves," said Shirley Ralph, just out of Jamaica (N. Y.) high school.

Lillian Evans of Cambridge, Mass., said she was on the last life boat to leave.

The boat sunk a short distance from the Maasdam. As it began slipping away, she said, she asked an officer what to do.

"Swim," he said.

Miss Evans said she and two others swam about 200 yards to another ship, which was part of the convoy.

Seek Unified Plan of Action in Milk Strike

the Eastern Milk Producers Association, which termed the purpose of the conference illegal under the anti-trust laws. Young, owner of three central New York dairy farms which have participated in the strike, has urged creation of a federal mediation board to determine fair prices for producers.

Mayor F. H. La Guardia, meanwhile, said in New York City there is sufficient milk on hand to supply the Metropolitan market today and tomorrow.

Death of a Vermont deputy sheriff, dumping of milk and other violence against which the union has cautioned, has marked the stoppage thus far in New York, Vermont and Pennsylvania.

POST-HOLIDAY LANGUOR AFFECTS MOST OF STOCK MARKET TODAY

New York, July 5—(AP)—Post-holiday languor gripped most parts of today's stock market although a few strong specialties helped buoy speculative spirits.

Many Wall Streeters gave the financial sector a wide berth but those who appeared seemed a shade more bullish than otherwise. While war news from the German-Russian front still was of a confusing character, brokers said, word the Stalinites were putting up greater resistance to the Nazi push than had been expected tended to inspire a little optimism among commission house customers.

Handicapping sentiment, however, was the thought that business-as-usual now is "out of the window" as the result of defense requirements and the effect of dislocations on a host of small-sized corporations, it was reared, might not be sa pleasing to stockholders. In the matter of the forthcoming tax bill, it was suggested that security prices in many instances had done considerable discounting.

Syrian Drive Is Intensified

the British said. The town is about 175 miles southeast of Aleppo.

A spokesman said that another mechanized force moving into Syria from Iraq occupied Tell Kotchek, which is near the Turkish border in the northeast corner of Syria and is on the Istanbul-Baghdad railway. The force is about 300 miles east of Aleppo as the crow flies and 150 miles northeast of the troops at Deir Ez Zor.

British and Free French forces advancing north from Damascus and west from Palmyra with Homs as their immediate objective constitute a third threat to Aleppo. Occupation of Homs would put these combined armies about 100 miles south of Aleppo.

CHICAGO GRAINS

Chicago, July 5—(AP)—Grain prices were steady today in initial post-holiday dealings. Continued restricted sale of new wheat coming to market and a pickup in flour inquiry and business imparted strength to wheat.

Opening unchanged to 3-8 lower, July $1.04¼-⅜, September $1.05-104⅞, wheat later held steady. Corn started unchanged to ¼ up, July 73 3-8, September 75 3-4.

Rome, July 5—(AP)—The Italian High Command acknowledged today that lack of food forced the surrender of the Fascist garrison at Debra Tabor, Ethiopia, after weeks of siege. Blows Against German Ports Are Increasing

At the same time, coastal command bombers raided the coast of southern Norway, the Air Ministry said, setting fire to docks and shipping at Haugesund and to a factory and the waterfront at Kristiansand.

Bomb explosions straddling Germany's repeatedly-attacked battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the big Nazi cruiser Prinz Eugen, raiding companion of the sunken Bismarck, were scored in a night raid on the harbor at Brest, the British Air Ministry said.

In the same sweep along the Nazi-held French coast the RAF was said to have blasted the U-boat base at Lorient, pouring explosives among moored submarines and damaging docks and buildings.

The Ministry said other flights attacked docks at Cherbourg, railroad yards at Abbeville and Rhineland industrial targets.

The attacks were the 24th by the RAF in the past 26 nights.

The 10,000-ton Prinz Eugen was said by the British to have taken refuge at Brest, damaged and cut off from safer harbors, when she eluded the cordon of British warships out to avenge the battle cruiser Hood.

The 26,000-ton sister ships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst have been bombed repeatedly by the RAF since they took refuge at Brest weeks ago.

The raiders reported shooting down two German fighters and said four of their own planes were missing.

The Germans bombed the industrial Midlands in their sharpest raids of the summer. Some west Midlands sections had their first bombings in nearly two months. Casualties were reported in at least two towns.

Sections of southwest and western England and south Wales also were attacked.

The British said three of the German raiders were shot down.

Berlin, July 5.—(AP)—British air raiders destroyed the 100-foot high Canadian World War monument at Brest in attacks last night on that Nazi-occupied French port, informed sources declared today.

(The British indicated that Brest, where they say Nazi warships have been sheltering, was one of their overnight targets.)

800 Selectees Will Reach Gap Over Week-end

(From Page One)

Guard troops absorbing them.

The 28th Division's first selectees—452 artillerymen from Fort Bragg, N. C., meanwhile, are enjoying their first weekend at home since induction into Uncle Sam's army some three months ago.

The 452—made up of 200-odd men from Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania, 100-odd from Philadelphia and the remainder from Texas, New York, New Jersey, North Carolina, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Ohio and Michigan, joined the 28th's 53rd Artillery Brigade Wednesday.

After a day given over to classification practically all of them left for home Thursday evening.

Since about 75 per cent of the soldiers here have been given extended holiday weekends off, the camp was practically deserted today. Things will pick up Sunday, however, when the 800 infantrymen are expected to check in from Camp Croft. Weather permitting, they will be classified outdoors in accordance with a new plan devised by officers.

POSSIBILITY OF SOFT COAL WALKOUT FADES

By the Associated Press

Possibility of a walkout of 150,000 southern soft coal miners appeared to be fading today as plenary committees of owners and workers gathered in the capital to talk over their differences.

John L. Lewis, president of the CIO United Mine Workers, and L. Ebersole Gaines, representative of the operators in the southern area said negotiations for a settlement of the dispute were progressing, and indicated there may be no strike Tuesday.

The comparatively minor details of contract wording—the operators already having agreed to an abandonment of the old 40-cent daily wage differential with the north—appeared to be the only hurdle.

As mine owners and employes sought to reach agreement in Washington, negotiations started at Alton, Ill., between the management of the Western Cartridge Company and the AFL Chemical Workers on the question of collective bargaining representation. The firm holds large ammunition contracts.

Members of the dairy farmers union in New York, Vermont and Pennsylvania, who seek higher prices for milk shipped to New York City, sent representatives of 23,000 producers to confer with Owen D. Young, retired industrialist, who owns a farm in New York. They hope to bring about a rise in price to a uniform figure of $3 per hundred weight, or 47 quarts, as compared with an estimated price of $2.15 for this month.

Boasting a membership of 30,000, the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association has discussed joining the union members in withholding milk from the market provided the groups, acting jointly under Young's leadership, can establish some objective and a practicable way to achieve it.

how close the hard-driven German spearheads were to the deep Russian defense belt differed, but the test appeared to be shaping up on the shortest line to Moscow—east of Dvinsk, and between the Berezina and Dnepr rivers toward Mogilev and Vitebsk.

A Russian communique declared the Germans had been unable to cross the Berezina despite three days of unceasing assault, but acknowledged the withdrawal of Red troops under heavy pressure in the lake-dotted region to the north.

In this sector, the Russians declared, they were forced back from the Dvinsk area toward the fortification system inside old Russia south of Pskov, and from Lepel in northern White Russia, within 70 miles of the forts centered about Vitebsk.

On the southern front the Red Army was reported in Moscow to be standing firm against an onset by numerically-superior forces driving toward the old Ukraine at Tarnopol.

A Moscow radio broadcast said the gains had cost the Germans almost 750,000 men killed, wounded and captured and asserted "the best divisions of the German army have been smashed."

The Germans, however, reported crossing the Berezina river in several places, rolling on toward the Dnepr and the Stalin Line little more than 50 miles to the east.

No One Wants Job as Mayor of Uniontown

mayor within the 30-day period prescribed by City Solicitor Frank Lane, the problem now goes to common please court, which will appoint the city's chief executive when a taxpayer's petition so requests.

The fuss started when Major William J. Crow, Republican mayor for more than three years, left June 4 for army duty at Aberdeen, Md.

At its June 24 meeting, the four-member council deadlocked 2-2 on the nomination of Charles A. Ellis, music store proprietor, for mayor. Council met again Thursday night—eve of the 30-day deadline—and voted on the nomination of Ellis and four other men, but deadlocked each time, no nominee being strong enough to win a majority. The voting did not follow party lines, council comprising three Republicans and one Democrat.

of a convoy, although depth charges were dropping around it at the time.

"The sailors told us they saw the submarine shoot, but we didn't see it ourselves," said Shirley Ralph, just out of Jamaica (N. Y.) high school.

Lillian Evans of Cambridge, Mass., said she was on the last life boat to leave.

The boat sunk a short distance from the Maasdam. As it began slipping away, she said, she asked an officer what to do.

"Swim," he said.

Miss Evans said she and two others swam about 200 yards to another ship, which was part of the convoy.

Seek Unified Plan of Action in Milk Strike

the Eastern Milk Producers Association, which termed the purpose of the conference illegal under the anti-trust laws. Young, owner of three central New York dairy farms which have participated in the strike, has urged creation of a federal mediation board to determine fair prices for producers.

Mayor F. H. La Guardia, meanwhile, said in New York City there is sufficient milk on hand to supply the Metropolitan market today and tomorrow.

Death of a Vermont deputy sheriff, dumping of milk and other violence against which the union has cautioned, has marked the stoppage thus far in New York, Vermont and Pennsylvania.

POST-HOLIDAY LANGUOR AFFECTS MOST OF STOCK MARKET TODAY

New York, July 5—(AP)—Post-holiday languor gripped most parts of today's stock market although a few strong specialties helped buoy speculative spirits.

Many Wall Streeters gave the financial sector a wide berth but those who appeared seemed a shade more bullish than otherwise. While war news from the German-Russian front still was of a confusing character, brokers said, word the Stalinites were putting up greater resistance to the Nazi push than had been expected tended to inspire a little optimism among commission house customers.

Handicapping sentiment, however, was the thought that business-as-usual now is "out of the window" as the result of defense requirements and the effect of dislocations on a host of small-sized corporations, it was reared, might not be as pleasing to stockholders. In the matter of the forthcoming tax bill, it was suggested that security prices in many instances had done considerable discounting.

the British said. The town is about 175 miles southeast of Aleppo.

A spokesman said that another mechanized force moving into Syria from Iraq occupied Tell Kotchek, which is near the Turkish border in the northeast corner of Syria and is on the Istanbul-Baghdad railway. The force is about 300 miles east of Aleppo as the crow flies and 150 miles northeast of the troops at Deir Ez Zor.

British and Free French forces advancing north from Damascus and west from Palmyra with Homs as their immediate objective constitute a third threat to Aleppo. Occupation of Homs would put these combined armies about 100 miles south of Aleppo.

CHICAGO GRAINS

Chicago, July 5—(AP)—Grain prices were steady today in initial post-holiday dealings. Continued restricted sale of new wheat coming to market and a pickup in flour inquiry and business imparted strength to wheat.

DISTRICT DRAFT OFFICIALS MEET HERE ON MONDAY

Members of draft boards and other Selective Service officials from six counties in this section will attend a meeting at the court house here on Monday afternoon at two o'clock to discuss various problems and hear talks by representatives from Selective Service headquarters in Harrisburg.

This meeting was scheduled originally for last Thursday, but was postponed because of inability of the officials to come here on that day.

Representatives from Crawford, Elk, Forest, McKean, Venango and Warren counties will attend Monday's session. Present from Harrisburg will be a legal advisor, a medical advisor and a speaker on occupational deferments from the state Selective Service office.

Because of the meeting at the court house, offices of the two local draft boards in the Warren Bank and Trust Company building will be closed Monday afternoon.

It was announced by members of the two boards here that names of men who registered last Tuesday will not be made public until Wednesday, July 9, which is the date set for shuffling the registration cards and the assigning of serial numbers.

After the cards have been numbered serially, it is expected that another national lottery will be held and order numbers given to the men who have become 21 since October 16, 1940. When the order numbers have been assigned, the men will become eligible for army service.

Meeting Monday Eve For Softball Pilots

The City and Fraternal Softball Leaguers will hold a joint meeting Monday night at the Elks club at 8:30 o'clock. All managers of teams in both leagues are urged to be on hand, it was stated today by Mel Johnson, prexy of the two loops.

Following is the remainder of the first half schedule of the City League. On Monday, the second half schedule of both circuits will be released:

July 7—K. of vs. Recreation Center.

July 8—St. Joseph's vs. Elks Club.

Completion of the first half with the second half starting on Wednesday, July 9.

DISTRICT DRAFT OFFICIALS MEET HERE ON MONDAY

Members of draft boards and other Selective Service officials from six counties in this section will attend a meeting at the court house here on Monday afternoon at two o'clock to discuss various problems and hear talks by representatives from Selective Service headquarters in Harrisburg.

This meeting was scheduled originally for last Thursday, but was postponed because of inability of the officials to come here on that day.

Representatives from Crawford, Elk, Forest, McKean, Venango and Warren counties will attend Monday's session. Present from Harrisburg will be a legal advisor, a medical advisor and a speaker on occupational deferments from the state Selective Service office.

Because of the meeting at the court house, offices of the two local draft boards in the Warren Bank and Trust Company building will be closed Monday afternoon.

It was announced by members of the two boards here that names of men who registered last Tuesday will not be made public until Wednesday, July 9, which is the date set for shuffling the registration cards and the assigning of serial numbers.

After the cards have been numbered serially, it is expected that another national lottery will be held and order numbers given to the men who have become 21 since October 16, 1940. When the order numbers have been assigned, the men will become eligible for army service.

FORCES 300 MILES FROM MOSCOW, NAZI COMMAND CLAIMS

SMASHING OF ELITE DIVISION IS REPORTED IN RED COMMUNIQUE

By the Associated Press

A German invasion force, at last smashing into the Stalin line, has crossed the bloody Berezina river and reached the banks of the Dnepr in its two-week-old drive toward Moscow, the German high command reported today.

This flat announcement was made in the face of Russian claims that the Berezina river sector had been turned into a watery death trap for thousands of Germans and meant, if true, that the Germans were about 300 miles from Moscow, having traversed more than 300 miles of Russian territory, counting the Polish buffer zone.

Russian claims were highlighted by a declaration that the drive thus far had cost the Germans nearly 750,000 losses in dead, wounded and prisoners—a smashing of the elite divisions of the German army.

The Hitler command used the reiterative phrase, "operations . . . proceeding according to plan," and said that "several thousand prisoners" had been taken in encounters between German reserves and scattered Russian detachments south of the Pinsk marshes.

Credit went to Hungarian forces for their report that Kolomea and Stanislawok in a southern sector of the great battlefront had been captured.

Finnish units at the side of Germans were said to have progressed "despite great difficulties of terrain and stubborn resistance."

In other sectors of the war, diplomatic and military, British troops were reported to have reached the Syrian-Turkish frontier in a push from Mosul, Iraq, cutting off the northeast corner of Syria, and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain, predicting a German peace offer, rejected it in advance on Britain's behalf.

The Red Army declared its stand along the Berezina and Druja waterways had rolled back terrific German assaults, with Germans caught in a destructive hail of artillery and machine-gun fire in the very waters there to be carried, wounded or dying, down stream.

This, to credit the Russian reports, was the modern counterpart of the rout of Napoleon—with variations. Napoleon's grande armee was cut to pieces on the bloody Berezina in its 1812 flight from Moscow. Now, the Germans are meeting fierce resistance there on the way to Moscow.

Not far east of the Berezina and the waterway system to the north which includes the Druja lies the Stalin line—the Red Army's principal fortifications.

By the German version, panzer columns which flanked France's Maginot Line were rolling toward it for their major test against the might of the Soviet Union.

The center of the fiercest fighting and the direst threat to Moscow apparently extended north from Bobruisk through Borisov on the Berezina to almost a 200-mile battlefront, anchored at the north on the junction of the Latvian and old Russian frontiers.

The Russians earlier said the fighting extended past Lepel on the Berezina canal, 40 miles north of Borisov. The town of Druja, on the stream of the same name, is 60 miles further north and lies east of Dvinsk.

The Germans claim to have reached the Latvian frontier of old Russia after a march through Lithuania and Latvia, two of the Baltic states Russia had absorbed as a buffer zone. The Russians have acknowledged a rectification of their lines in the Latvian border region.

BLOWS AGAINST GERMAN PORTS ARE INCREASING

BATTLESHIPS BLASTED

By the Associated Press

London, July 5.—A mighty force of RAF bombers, perhaps the biggest yet in daylight, slashed back across the channel over northern France today in another big raid in the almost month-long chain of British day-and-night air blows against Germany.

The day shift took up where the night bombers left off after battering Nazi targets from the industrial Rhineland to the Atlantic refuge ports harboring some of Germany's biggest warships and U-boat fleets.

The drone of planes over the channel was heard continuously for a half hour, and shore observers speculated that the RAF was increasing continuously the numbers of its raiding bombers and guardian fighters.

One big formation of fighter-escorted bombers returned from a direction west of Boulogne after heavy explosions, apparently some distance inland, had been heard twice within an hour from the French side.

Eden Predicts Peace Move Which He Rejects in Advance

Leeds, England, July 5—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden predicted a new German peace offer and rejected it in advance today, reiterating Britain's determination to destroy Adolf Hitler and "all he stands for."

"We anticipate that Hitler, at a moment he considers opportune during his campaign in Russia, will seek to present himself in another of his occasional theatrical roles," Eden told an outdoor meeting here.

"This time, his make-up will be that of the man of peace. Internal conditions in Germany may make this false posturing necessary for him for a spell. He will offer smooth assurances and specious promises in the hope of liming some foolish birds.

"It might, therefore, be useful that I should now declare the position of his majesty's government in respect to any peace offer by Hitler.

"The head of the German state stands condemned by his own deeds as a man of perjured faith. We are not in any circumstances prepared

OPPOSITION TO MARSHALL PLAN IS INCREASING

Word Spreads in Senate That Sweeping Recommendations for Revision Of Draft Laws Might be Put Aside for the Time Being

M'NARY LEADS FOES

Washington, July 5—(AP)—Word spread in the Senate today that General George C. Marshall's sweeping recommendations for revision of the draft laws might be put aside for awhile.

This report, originated by an administration lieutenant who asked not to be quoted by name, circulated at the capitol while Senator McNary (R-Ore), minority leader, voiced his outspoken opposition to Marshall's proposal for keeping selectees and National Guardsmen in service beyond one year and for lifting the ban against sending draftees out of this hemisphere.

On the other hand, Robert P. Patterson, assistant secretary of war, approved the recommendations which the chief of staff made Thursday. Patterson said he did not know whether such steps would be necessary, but added that "we should have an army prepared for whatever emergency we may meet."

Expressing the views that Marshall's recommendations would require considerable study by the White House before they could be offered to congress, an administration spokesman added that they probably would be withheld until overwhelming congressional approval was assured. Such approval, he added, could not be obtained at present and probably would be possible only if there

Chief Executive, After Nine Relatively Carefree Days At Hyde Park, Returns To Capital to Muster More Weapons Against Combination in Which he Sees Definite Menace to Freedom Americans Hold Dear

CALLS FOR LOYALTY, UNITY AND EFFICIENCY

Washington, D. C., July—(AP)—President Roosevelt returned to the capital today to muster more weapons against a "dictator combination" in which he saw a definite menace to the freedom Americans hold dear.

There were signs that he was ready to act on Russian requests for aid against the Nazi military juggernaut, authough details of the transactions were expected to be kept secret.

Mr. Roosevelt, going back after nine relatively carefree days at his country estate at Hyde Park, N. Y., left for Washington by train late last night after broadcasting a Fourth of July warning to his fellow Americans that their freedom was threatened.

Gathered around radios and amplifiers, millions of Americans everywhere heard him speak, joined with Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, vacationing in Colorado, in the pledge of allegiance to the flag, and heard the marine band in Washington play the Star Spangled Banner.

Mr. Roosevelt told them that they must realize they were pledging not only allegiance to flag and country, but also their work, their will, and if necessary, their very lives.

He called upon them for loyalty and unity, for speed, efficiency and toil, and for an end to "backbiting" and to "sabotage that runs far deeper than the blowing up of munitions plants."

"I tell the American people solemnly," he said, "that the United States will never survive as a happy and fertile oasis of liberty surrounded by a cruel desert of dictatorship."

Americans fought in 1776, the president declared, for a great principle that government should

BRITAIN DETERMINED TO DESTROY HITLER

London, July 5—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden reaffirmed today Britain's determination to destroy Adolf Hitler and "all he stands for."

"We are not in any circumstances prepared to negotiate with him at any time on any subject," Eden told an outdoor meeting. "We are all out to beat Hitler."

"We shall not let go until we have done the job and we welcome all those who will give us a hand to finish it."

Eden added the warning that "we should make the greatest mistake, were we to imagine that extension of the conflict into Russia justified us in relaxing our vigor even for an instant."

SEEK UNIFIED PLAN OF ACTION IN MILK STRIKE

ONE GROUP DECLINES

Utica, N. Y., July 5—(AP)—Representatives of 53,000 dairymen in three states meet today with retired industrialist Owen D. Young to form a "unified plan of action" in a milk strike that the sponsoring dairy farmers union claims has cut New York City's daily milk supply two thirds.

Accepting Young's invitations to the conference were the Dairymen's League, with an estimated 30,000 members, and the union which called the stoppage five days ago in an effort to obtain a uniform price of $3 per hundredweight (47 quarts) for milk shipped to the Metropolitan market as against an estimated July price of $2.15.

New York City health officials reported an approximate 3,200,000 quart reduction in their estimate of a 7,500,000 quart daily flow. The union, however held that the normal daily fluid supply is 5,000,000 quarts and that the remaining 2,500,000 quarts represent milk by-products such as butter and cheese made in rural areas and shipped to the city.

Declining Young's invitation was

ONE KILLED IN ROARING BLAZE ON BROADWAY

FIRE UNDER CONTROL

New York, July 5—(AP)—A roaring blaze which had smoldered undetected more than 24 hours in a brick building on lower Broadway killed one fireman early today and injured 29 others.

The body of the dead man, Carl Bischoff, was carried out two hours after the fire was declared under control.

The injured were taken to hospitals, where they were found to be suffering mainly from burns.

They were hurled across the street by two blasts—backdrafts—of smoke and flames that broke the early morning silence of the financial district like major explosions.

So great was the force of the blasts that they literally picked up the firemen and hurled them about 30 feet across Broadway, depositing them on the sidewalk or against the facade of the American Telephone and Telegraph building.

Heavy steel-shuttered windows popped like corks from the six-story building housing Modell's sporting goods store on lower Broadway between Fulton and John streets as firemen, responding to four alarms, crashed in a vestibule door.

The flames, which firemen believe started in the tightly-shut building Thursday night and gained potential force between then and 4 a. m. (EST) today, shot through the structure's roof and spread to the

MAGNETIC CURRENTS DISRUPT SERVICES

New York, July 5—(AP)—Magnetic earth currents early today disrupted wire and wireless communications and for several hours before dawn blacked out all radio and cable contact with Europe.

The disturbances, described by technicians as akin to those sometimes caused by aurora borealis, or northern lights, appeared to be clearing as the morning progressed.

NBC and CBS reported paralysis of short wave reception. Western Union said its ground wires were affected during the night, but that spasmodic interruption ceased by mid-morning.

American Telephone and Telegraph reported similar ground wire difficulty, and RCA communications and press wireless said their service was impeded frequently.

NURSES RELATE GRAPHIC STORY OF SEA ATTACK

BY EDDY GILMORE

London, July 5—(AP)—American Red Cross nurses who survived the sinking of the Netherlands steamer Maasdam said today the sea was so rough when the Maasdam went down that some of their lifeboats capsized.

Several of the nurses were in the water an hour or more before they were picked up by other ships of the convoy, they said.

The Maasdam was torpedoed in the Atlantic last month. Nine of the 17 American nurses on board arrived in England yesterday. Six are known to be on another ship. The whereabouts of two still is unknown, but Dr. John Gordon of the Red Cross hospital unit said he believed they had been picked up by a third ship and are safe.

The nurses said the German submarine came up in the middle

EXERCISES AT FORT NECESSITY ARE DAMP

Uniontown, July 5—(AP)—Major General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the air corps, says the army's only real fortifications today are bombing planes.

During a heavy rain, he addressed an Independence Day crowd at Fort Necessity, where exactly 187 years before George Washington surrendered to the French in the French and Indian war.

Other speakers included Major General Edward Martin, Commander of the 28th Division.

Traffic Accidents Result in 151 Deaths in Country, With Airplane Crashes, Drownings, Shootings And Other Causes Taking a toll of An Additional 82 Lives, Bringing Total to 233

SIX AUTOISTS KILLED AT GRADE CROSSINGS

By the Associated Press

With 20 accidental deaths, Pennsylvania led the nation in Independence Day fatalities, 19 the result of highway accidents.

Traffic accidents resulted in 157 deaths, only three less than the total fatalities from all causes on last year's Fourth of July.

A rising holiday traffic toll was reported across the nation, with automobiles bringing death to at least 151 pleasure seekers—or 23 more than the total fatalities from all causes on last year's Fourth of July.

Drownings, airplane crashes, shootings and other violent forms of death took an additional 82 lives, bringing the total fatalities to 233, as reported by 8 a. m. (EST) today. In previous years, the National Safety Council estimated at 85 the normal average number of traffic deaths for a Friday in July.

Last year's low record of only two deaths from fireworks was repeated, one such fatality occurring in Missouri and another at Connesville, Ind., where a pyrotechnical expert was killed at an authorized fireworks display. Ohio and California both reported 18 total deaths.

Worst single tragedy was an automobile-train chash at the Long Island Railroad's Matituck, N. Y., grade crossing, where six automobile occupants were killed and a seventh critically injured.

Deaths by states:

Alabama 4, Arizona 1, Arkansas 4, California 23, Colorado 1, Connecticut 2, Florida 5, Georgia 6, Illinois 18, Indiana 8, Iowa 5, Kansas 2, Kentucky 3, Louisiana 3, Maine 1, Maryland 2, Massachusetts 6, Michigan 9, Minnesota 6, Mississippi 3, Missouri 4, New Jersey 2, New Mexico 4.

New York 20, North Carolina 7, Ohio 22, Oklahoma 2, Oregon 7, Pennsylvania 20, South Carolina 1, Tennessee 1, Texas 4, Utah 1, Virginia 4, Washington 11, West Virginia 5, Wisconsin 3.

Independence Day addresses brought a mighty call for American unity from President Roosevelt and other national figures.

Continuing the theme that America stands in danger from abroad, Attorney General Jackson declared in Washington last night that "no amount of cautious behavior, no amount of polite talk will earn for

SHIPPING SHOWS BETTER OUTLOOK

Washington, July 5—(AP)—A sign of improvement in Britain's shipping situation was seen here today in a British notice to the Department of Agriculture that it expects to take at least 20,000 bales of cotton a month under the lend-lease act.

For months Britain, cramped for shipping space, has not bought cotton in this country and has restricted agricultural purchases to highly concentrated goods such as evaporated milk, cheese and dried eggs. Her announcement this week that she was prepared to take a minimum of 20,000 bales of cotton monthly came as a surprise to agricultural officials who had given up hope of disposing of any

The State Department of Public Assistance today complied with a request of the legislature that it abolish its $500 maximum limit on insurance policies that may be carried by persons on relief, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

Secretary Howard L. Russell said that the state board of assistance decided the legislature, in its resolution, raised a "valid point" when it sought "to prevent forcing a relief recipient to sacrifice his insurance coverage by reducing a policy to $500 when he might need relief for a short time only."

"Insurance may be retained in any amount" in the future, said Russell, providing the relief recipient assigns that amount over $500 to the department "for eventual repayment" of assistance grants.

This, the secretary declared, "went further than the request" of the Senate resolution which merely asked the maximum be raised from $500 to $1,000.

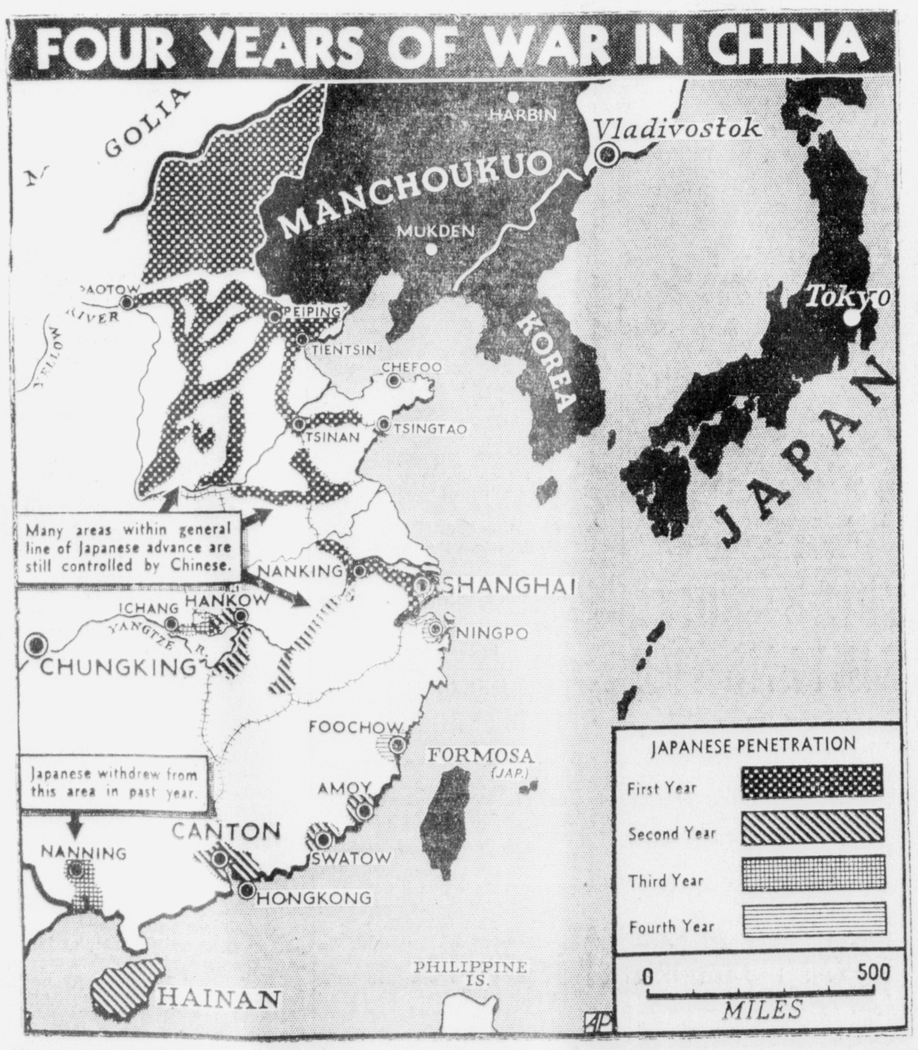
FOUR YEARS OF WAR IN CHINA



This map is a year-by-year record of the Sino-Japanese war that started four years ago July 7, when Japanese and Chinese troops clashed at the Marco Polo bridge near Peiping. Japanese penetration has been largely along railroads and rivers, thus the narrow strips denoting Japanese-held territory. Between the strips are areas where Chinese guerillas, and sometimes regular army units, are able to operate.

The summer session of the national championships tournament, which will be held this year in the Convention Hall at Asbury Park, N. J., the week beginning Aug. 4, brings together a greater assembly of master bridge players than any other tournament.

This is a long grind, extending over four sessions. I doubt if any newcomers will carry off the title—it will be a pair of top-ranking stars. But keep an eye on Jack Denny of Toledo and Jack Shore of New York if they participate. Although I have played with Denny only once, I predict he will rank among the top flight players in the next few years. I have always claimed Jack Shore was greatly underrated. If he pairs with some of the stars this summer, he is capable of carrying off any of the titles. Today's hand is an example of his brilliant play.

Shore (South) won the second round of hearts with the ace. After playing the queen and a small diamond to dummy's king, he discovered that, because of the high cards in the suit in his own hand, the suit would be blocked, and he would be unable to win the ninth trick without the spade finesse, which might be wrong.

He solved the situation by leading the suit originally opened by the defenders, a heart. West ran the balance of the hearts, but could win only four tricks, as Shore discarded one diamond from his hand and thus won all five diamonds, two clubs and the two major aces.

By WM. E. McKENNEY

The splendid showing of Mrs. R. C. (Sally) Young of Philadelphia and Mrs. A. M. (Helen) Sobel of New York in championship tournaments in the past year or two has emphasized the capability of women as bridge players. But of the 27 Life Masters, only these two women are listed.

I was asked recently if there are any outstanding women bridge players coming along. If Mrs. Wilkinson Wagar of Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. J. E. Folline of Richmond, Va., get to the nationals in Asbury Park this summer, put it down in your little book that one of them will be found among the year's national champions.

Mrs. Folline participated in the world championship Masters individual tournament this year and managed to win a top score in one of the five sessions. She is neither a timid bidder nor timid player, as you can see from today's hand.

South made a nice play on the first trick by following with the queen of diamonds instead of the ace. Mrs. Folline (West), with iron nerve, held up the king. South cashed the ace and knocked out the king.

Mrs. Folline led a spade, and the king was allowed to win. Back came a club, and again the king won. Now the four hearts were cashed, dummy discarding the eight of spades, and South found it impossible to hold his second stopper in both black suits. Mrs. Folline developed a ninth trick for the contract.

HEARTBREAK HONEYMOON

by WATKINS E. WRIGHT

YESTERDAY: Henry and Luella Pell have not been married long—only long enough for a large bluebottle to get into the honey. For Marie Mason, who threw Henry over in the old home town, is now a first rate radio star, and she has asked the Pells to hear her broadcast, and now is talking very, very earnestly to Henry while Luella and Tommy McIntyre dance. Luella can't quite like it all.

Chapter Seven

Lonely Wife

BUT Marie declined to dance, when Tommy invited her to.

"Tired?" Tommy asked.

"No," said Marie. "But we think it would be nice to move on to a quieter place, where we can talk. Henry and I want to go with our reminiscing."

"But I thought you said this was no time for that," Luella reminded.

Marie shrugged, and laughed lightly.

"Luella, darling," she said, "you mustn't take people so literally."

"Yes, darling," said Luella. And then: "But why move on? I thought you two looked awfully cozy and comfy sitting here."

"Too many interruptions," said Henry. "People forever coming up to speak to Marie and ask for her autograph."

They got their wraps and coats. They went up to a little Hungarian Cafe in the West Seventies. They stayed there until after two o'clock in the morning. Marie and Henry talked — talked — talked. Luella and Tommy smoked and danced, and sometimes sat in perfect silence, thinking, thinking. They would probably have stayed longer—the four of them—if Luella hadn't fully reminded Henry that he had to be at the office at nine.

"My darling's out to make a name for himself," she said. "He can't do that by sitting in cafes all night. Can you, Henry?"

"No," said Henry shortly. "All right, let's break it up."

They parted after an outburst of plans to get together often, to do this, and that, and the other thing.

Later, at home and in bed, Henry said: "They're a grand pair, aren't they, honey? Marie and Tommy?"

Luella said nothing. Henry turned toward her.

"Don't you think so, Luella?" he asked.

"Yes," said Luella. "They're quite grand. Only I think it's awful the way Marie treats Tommy."

"How do you mean?"

"Neglecting him like she does."

"Nonsense!" said Henry. "And, listen, honey, this is New York, not our old hometown—so don't go getting worked up about what people do or don't do—how they act—and all that."

They were silent for a time. Then Luella moved as close as she possibly could to Henry.

"Hold me close, Henry," she said. The old panicky feeling was trying to possess her — that old feeling that perhaps she couldn't compete with a girl like Marie Mason. "Hold me close, Henry. Don't let me go—ever."

"Luella, sweet," said Henry very softly. His arms were about her, he was holding her face against his cheek. "Luella, I believe you are crying!"

"D-d-don't be silly," said Luella.

Henry kept on holding her to him.

"What do you mean, asking me not to let you go—ever?" he wanted to know.

"I don't know just why I said that," Luella admitted. "Just the silly remark of a woman — in love."

Henry suddenly remembered the look in Marie's eyes. And the memory disturbed him. He tightened the arms that were about Luella.

"Don't you ever let me go," he said huskily. "Don't ever let me get away from you."

"I won't," said Luella fiercely. "I won't."

Henry was hers, and no one was ever going to take him away from her. Never—never—never. . . .

Dinner For Four

THE days following the broadcast seemed to move on swift wings, so far as Henry Pell was concerned; but not for Luella. Now that the apartment was all settled, and there was nothing urgent to occupy her time, she experienced many a lonely, homesick hour. She visited museums and art galleries, and attended an occasional matinee, but always alone. Sometimes she was so desperate for company that she was tempted to walk up to total strangers and invite them to go places with her.

"Those wives of your business associates certainly aren't in a hurry to call on me," she said to Henry one evening. "Honestly, Henry, I haven't visited with anyone in so long, I—I—feel like an alien or something."

"I'm sorry," Henry said sympathetically. "But they'll get around to it sooner or later. You see, honey, most of them live in the suburbs, and have babies. Wait until summer weather sets in and they'll be inviting us out for week-ends."

And she went on with her knitting, wondering just what sort of young Britisher would eventually wear the sweater she was making, even wondering somewhat morbidly if he would be wearing it when his plane was shot down.

Then, at last, came the night of the dinner. Marie had a free evening, and so had Tommy. And now everything was in readiness for the Pells' first evening at playing hosts. Luella had engaged a colored woman to help her, although she had insisted upon doing practically all the cooking herself.

"Lawsy, Miss Pell," said Patsy, the colored woman, "to look at you-all, so pretty like, I'd sure never think you-all could cook."

Luella looked up from re-arranging the deep red roses in the cut-glass bowl.

"Oh, we Southerners surprise people with the things we can do with our supposedly useless little hands," she said. "You ought to know that yourself, being from Georgia."

"Yas'm," said Patsy. "But so many of us Southern folks change and gets sorter careless-like, sorter get the Yankee-ways when we get up here. She glanced at her reflection in the mantel mirror. "Do I look all right, Miss Pell, wearing this frilly cap?"

"You look positively beautiful, Patsy," said Luella. "If you serve the dinner as well as you look, Mr. Pell and I will be everlastingly grateful to you; and I'll see that he gives you a little something extra."

Henry came in while she was getting into her dainty underthings.

"Hurry out of that bathroom, darling!" he called.

"Coming!" said Luella, joining him. "Hurry yourself, you old slowpoke." She gave him a quick kiss. "Get showered and shaved. Then you'd better mix the cocktails. I've put the ingredients on the kitchen table. When you're through, put the shaker in the ice box."

"Yes'm," said Henry. "Only I'll mix the drinks before I get dolled up. So they'll be cooling."

He went whistling out to the kitchen.

Luella got out fresh socks, shorts, and a shirt for Henry. She laid these upon the bed and began to disrobe. She then went into the bathroom.

Luella had just finished her dressing when the telephone bell rang.

"It's for you-all, Miss Pell!" Patsy called.

"Thank you, Patsy," Luella picked up the receiver.

It was Marie calling.

Important Man

"DARLING," she said, "do forgive me for calling you like this. I know you must be busy preparing dinner, but—"

"For goodness' sake, Marie, don't tell me you're not coming!" Luella cut in.

"Of course I'm coming," said Marie.

"Well, that's a relief! Dinner's all prepared."

"I had to meet a very important radio man for cocktails," Marie went on. "We're down in a hotel lounge. And what I'm calling for is to ask if I may invite him up, for after dinner, you know. I think Henry should meet him by all means. He's nice, too. You'll like him.

"Invite him up, of course," said Luella. "I'm sorry it's too late to ask him for dinner."

"That's all right. He's got an engagement. Will nine-thirty be all right?"

"Yes. We'll be through dinner by then, if you're not late. Henry's going to make some mint julips later. And there'll be one for your friend, Mr. er—"

"Rector is his name," said Marie. "Malcolm Rector."

"Very well, there'll be a julip for Mr. Rector. I'll even save him an order of Brown Betty pudding."

"Thanks a lot, darling! That will be terribly sweet of you. Remember, he's important and we're doing it all for Henry."

"Yes, I'll remember."

And as she turned from the telephone a moment later Luella felt annoyed. That "we" sort of rankled.

"All right, Henry," she called, "the bathroom's yours!"

Henry hurried past her.

"That was Marie who telephoned," Luella said. "She's bringing up a Mr. Rector He's important or something."

"Not Malcolm Rector?" Henry said.

"Yes, I think she did say his first name was Malcolm."

"Say, this is a break! Do you know who he is, darling?"

"No idea — except he's important."

"I'll say he's important!" said Henry. "He's one of the biggest stockholders in the radio business. He's got a yacht, believe it or not—and scads of money. Maybe he'll like us and invite us for a yachting trip along the Sound. Picture us on a yacht, Luella!"

"I'm picturing us," said Luella without enthusiasm. What on earth did one wear on a yacht? "Henry, do hurry! The guests will be here before you're half dressed."

"Okay, beautiful!" Henry turned on the shower. "I ought to sell him a nice interest in some of the land holdings I'm handling."

Luella fluffed the red-gold curls that were piled on top of her head.

"Sometimes I get all mixed up," she said.

"How do you mean?" Henry called.

"I never am sure whether it's all just for business reasons or whether it's for a good time that one meets people in New York."

"Both!" Henry laughed. Then he started singing.

Luella sighed, gave a last look at her reflection, and went out to give the living-room one more going-over. It was perfect, she thought; homelike and charming.

And so was the dinner perfect, in spite of the fact that the very important Mr. Rector was in the offing.

Men in Uniform to Get Reductions at Two Local Theatres

Warner Bros. theatres on July 7 will inaugurate an admission price reduction for uniformed men in the United States armed services, Joseph Bernhard, general manager of the theatres announced yesterday. United States soldiers, sailors, marines, and members of the aviation corps in uniform will be given the benefit of the reduced prices in keeping with the company's policy of all out cooperation with the national defense program.

The reduction which will amount to more than 50% in some cases is being made on the following basis: an admission of 20 cents plus the prevailing defense tax on all tickets up to 40 cents; an admission of 25 cents plus the prevailing defense tax on all tickets above 40 cents.

All Warner theatres throughout the country are making these special rates available to uniformed men of the country's armed services.

Both the Library and the Columbia theatres here will carry out this reduction plan, starting Monday, it was stated today.

QUIET HOLIDAY IS ENJOYED BY RESIDENTS HERE

With no serious accidents of any kind to mar the day, most local residents spent an enjoyable but quet Fourth of July holiday yesterday. Almost completely absent were the fireworks of former years, and absent, too, the numerous accidents which accompanied their use.

Because of the New York state ban on fireworks, there was not the opportunity for border residents to obtain them which prevailed last year.

Scores of picnic parties were enjoyed by Warren families on the holiday, with every nearby picnic spot proving popular. Others motored to nearby summer resorts for entertainment.

Highways in this section were crowded with cars throughout the day, but with the exception of a few minor incidents, no mishaps were reported by state motor police.

THE COMMUNITY MUST HELP

A concrete way for every resident of Warren county to help defend his country is offered in the forthcoming United Service Organizations campaign, plans for which have been announced.

Funds—$3,800 of which is Warren county's quota—are to be used in providing for the wholesome use of leisure time of our men and women in uniform and workers in new defense centers. The program will be administered jointly by six organizations whose past records are well known—the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Salvation Army, the Catholic Community Service, the Jewish Welfare Board and the Travelers' Aid Society.

The youth of our nation is the core of our defense.

More than 1,500,000 young Americans are in uniform today.

Over 2,000,000 others, many of them young people, are engaged in our new defense industries.

These are our defenders. We stake our national destiny on their spirit—on their vital morale.

Within camps and naval stations every effort is made to develop morale, not only by military discipline but by programs of recreation, religious service and education.

But when required duties are done for the day, the soldier or sailor naturally is eager to get away from bounds. And when he seeks relaxation in the nearby communities he finds little to do but stand on street corners or yield to the temptation of the questionable forms of recreation offered.

The U. S. O. plans to set up some 360 service clubs adjacent to camps, naval stations and defense industries so that the influence and comfort of the American home community may be brought to those who have been separated from their homes to serve their country.

Excellent leadership, in the selection of Dr. Leonard Rosenzweig and his aides, has been chosen for the campaign in the county. The call is one that comes to all of us—veterans of the last war, mothers and fathers, and the rest who carry on at home while our young men and women give themselves to our defense.

It is a call the county must heed!

The local campaign will start Monday. Be prepared to make your contribution when the solicitor calls upon you!

WEEKLY SERMONETTE

THE FOUNDATION OF OUR LIBERTY

REV. H. BLAIR WARD
Church of the Nazarene, Warren

"We hold these truths to be self evident," wrote the authors of the Declaration of Independence, "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." To maintain these truths, over the comparatively brief history of our nation, we have fought our major wars, conducted innumerable political campaigns, engaged in countless discussions, and gone to the polls many times. They have become a part of our heritage. They have come to represent unto us the American way of life.

Today, as never before in our history, these "certain inalienable rights" are being threatened by armed forces without and by subversive elements within. It is our duty as a people to use every implement at our disposal to counteract these forces and preserve the liberties which are so precious to us. Armaments, soldiers, production, counter-espionage, taxes, legislation and countless other methods of a great nation's supreme effort should be used to build up an impregnable defense against totalitarian enslavement.

However, in all our frenzied preparation, in all our talk about the American way and our priceless liberties, we must remember that our first line of defense is not material, but spiritual. Men must first have something to fight for before they will fight. Giant trees are not easily toppled by the wind, unless decayed at the heart; neither do great nations fall, except internal decay has sapped the spiritual forces that made them great. Saint Paul, in writing to the Galatian Christians, laid down the only principles by which true liberty can endure. He said, "Ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another." (Galatians 5:13).

Liberty is not license. The dope fiend is not free. He is the slave of his drug and a curse to his nation. Liberty is not freedom to do as one pleases regardless of the consequences to one's self or to others. The unprincipled man, ruthlessly exploiting others for his own selfish purpose, is not free. He is the slave of his own greed and is sowing the seed of national bondage. A people cannot long be free who insist on building their lives on the shifting sands of personal license.

Liberty such as we enjoy in this country, if it is to endure, must be voluntarily limited. If it does not voluntarily limit itself, it will eventually be limited from without or within by force. The most satisfactory principles one can find on which to base this voluntary limitation are found in the New Testament and are expressed by St. Paul in the above verse of scripture. My personal liberty ends where the rights of others begin. In fact, true liberty is found in forgetting one's self in service to others. The freest man who ever lived was Christ, and the core of His teaching was service to others. Use your liberty, Paul said, not as an occasion for self-indulgence—"to the flesh"—but use it as an opportunity for service to others—"in love serve one another."

Our nation can be free only as her people are free, and her people will be free only as they practice this first law of liberty—"in love serve one another."

This May Make You Feel Better, but We Doubt It

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, July 5—The war of the isolationists against the ex-Republican, ex-Army colonel, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox probably won't reach the shooting stage, even if the Navy itself has accidentally on purpose already taken a shot or two at the Nazis.

When the congressmen, however, get Colonel Knox on the spot for a little questioning by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee on just what has been going on in the Atlantic, they may do a little shouting about the amazing log which the genial secretary with the Sunny Jim grin has written on his shake-down cruises into the unchartered seas of oratory and his test flights in trial balloons.

His record of war-like utterances, climaxed by his most recent and most amazing statement that the U. S. Navy should "clear the Atlantic of the German menace", has left Washington gasping. There is a little talk of impeachment, but that's wild, too. The net score to date is that not once has Secretary Knox had to use parachute or life preserver to get back to the safe harbor of his desk, from which base he just grins broadly, saying nothing, or at the most, "No comment."

What about those men up on the hill who want his scalp

"No comment!"

Did the President okay his speeches?

"No comment."

Is he going to resign?

"I'll let you write your own answer to that."

The answer is that he is not going to resign at all. They'll have to torpedo him out of the job. He loves it. And he has been shipwrecked out on a limb, and had his bow ties fired across before.

Though he is still running an unscheduled race with cotton-mouthed Senator Claude E. Pepper of Tallahassee, Fla., as to who can make the most warlike speeches, there isn't anything new in Knox's line, as a cursory examination of his speeches the last 10 months will show.

In August he was talking about the "international brigands". In October, addressing an FBI graduating class, he was already to go, steam up and a bunker full of coal. "If a fight is forced upon us," he said, "we shall be ready for them. We have never lost a war yet."

A month later, before the New England council, he paid his respects to appeasers with this broadside: "It doesn't fit the American spirit, the American purpose . . . to talk appeasement in a world like this where force and force alone determines the fate of nations. And we will not talk about what we are going to do. We are going to do it, and that speaks louder than words."

In January, before the House Foreign Affairs Committee considering the lease-lend program, as well as in his Armistice Day speech before the American Legion at Columbia, S. C., Knox was ready to defend the entire hemisphere against all comers, and there was only one way to do that. "We should now," he said, "prevent Germany from overturning the British sea power which holds the Nazis in Europe".

Addressing the mid-year graduating class at Annapolis, the secretary made it plain that the middies were in for it. "You are entering your professional life under the shadow of another irreconcilable conflict", he told them. "You go to help occupy the western world's first line of defense. Upon . . . you . . . will rest the future safety of the United States and the entire western hemisphere."

Little Albania Suffers As Modern Battleground

HISTORICALLY a warlike people, the Albanians have seen enough war in a little over two years to last them for centuries.

The stamp above, with the profile of King Victor Emmanuel III of Italy, was issued late in 1939. In March of that year, Italy had marched on Albania and seized the country, forcing King Zog to flee. The Italian king was then proclaimed king of Albania.

Last year, modern warriors again overrode Albania, when Italian forces, attempting to invade Greece, were thrown back into Albania. For several months, Greek troops battled successfully in mountain positions with retreating Italians. This year, Germany swept into the Balkans and Albanian soil became the battleground for troops of at least five foreign nations—British, Greek, Yugoslav, Italian and German.

Until the Balkan war of 1912-13, Albania was nothing more than an undefined region. Territorial limits and self-government were set up following World War I. Zog, who had been president of the Albanian republic, became monarch in 1928.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The President has hung out a new sign. It reads: "Help Wanted—A liaison man in the Senate."

The death of kindly, soft-spoken and well-beloved Sen. Pat Harrison, president pro tem of the Senate, has so further thinned the ranks of loyal senators that the administration reportedly is getting a little frantic about what to do for leadership in the upper chamber.

It isn't that there aren't some men remaining who can be counted on to line up on the right side of the aisle when the chips are being counted. The administration still has a substantial majority as long as the fight is just a skirmish between Democrats and Republicans. But when it develops into a knock-down-and-drag-out, who's going to give the signals, call the plays, and keep the boys from getting off-side?

Sen. James F. Byrnes—the greatest contact man the President ever has had on the Hill—has moved up to the Supreme Court. Pat Harrison is gone to an even higher tribunal.

I've combed the cloakrooms and listened to the rumors. There's hardly any one you could point to and say he's the next President's man.

George Already Busy

SEN. WALTER F. GEORGE, of Georgia, might be the next President pro tem, but Senator George, as chairman of the foreign relations committee, already has his hands full. "President pro tem" never was meant to be anything more than an honorary job anyway and it is only when some senator not otherwise in a key position can be given that post that it means anything.

As for a real "liaison man" (really an anonymous job, because neither legally nor politically is there any such official title), the men most prominently mentioned are Sen. Tom Connally, of Texas; Sen. Scott W. Lucas, of Illinois, and Sen. Lister Hill, of Alabama.

Measured by the political stature of "Jimmy" Byrnes, all of these man fall far short. None of them could be counted on to take a tough assignment and hammer it through heart and soul as Byrnes did. Senators Lucas and Hill haven't the adroitness, the political skill, nor the popularity needed to hit in such pinches. Senator Connally isn't lacking in political sleight-of-hand, but the veteran Texan has tossed so many rough punches and gougings into his opponents that it's hard to expect any consideration if he should approach them now with padded gloves. He hasn't been a consistent President's man, and being a senator of strong convictions, he probably couldn't be counted on to carry the torch for every White House-sponsored issue.

There are others who might be mentioned—but, at this writing, not seriously. Some enterprising senator may come forward and make his place in the sun, but he'll have to start from scratch and not hold up his record as testimony that he deserves the place.

The best guess now is that the President will struggle along without any liaison in the upper house, counting on Sen. Alben Barkley, majority leader, and perhaps Vice President Henry A. Wallace to pass along his off-the-record convictions.

What About Wallace?

JUST the mention of vice President Wallace brings up an important point. From the moment he took the chair as president of the Senate, the Vice President has shucked a lot of corn in making himself the ace of good fellows with the men who look to him for recognition on the floor. Already, he is just about kingpin of the gymnasium gang. He's a popular tennis partner with every senator who knows a net from deuce. And his luncheons, both formal and informal, daily include from one to a score of the men with whom he works.

Just how much this means isn't clear yet, but some observers are saying now that it's possible, with Mr. Wallace in the Senate chair, the President won't need any other liaison man.

Daughters of 1812 Are Entertained By Mrs. George Olmsted

On Tuesday, July 1, the General William Irvine Chapter, National Society, United States Daughters of 1812, was entertained by Mrs. G. W. Olmsted for luncheon in her lovely Ludlow home.

After luncheon, the chapter president, Mrs. Fred C. Eaton, presided at a brief, informal business session at which it was decided to hold anniversary exercises September 10 in the little stone church in Irvine if Miss Newbold would consent to its use as usual, and if a satisfactory speaker can be secured.

The president gave some account of the society's activities in the way of work for the American Merchant Marine Library, help to mountain schools, marking of the graves of soldiers of the War of 1812, patriotic education and other projects. She also told the story of the writing of the Pledges of Allegiance to the Flag by a young school boy in Chary Valley, Kans., who later served in the Spanish-American war.

A brief program consisted of the inspection of antique jewelry, including some interesting pieces loaned by Mrs. R. N. Brown, of Warren, some brought by Mrs. Hunter from India, China and Egypt and some brought by Mrs. Olmsted from Budapest.

The General William Irvine Chapter has been much reduced by death and resignation, but continues active in conserving the ideals and furthering the undertakings of the national society.

Members present for the pleasant gathering were Mrs. L. L. Hunter, of Tidioute, and her daughter, Mrs. Marshall Ulf, of Cleveland, O.; Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. Orion Siggins, Mrs. Elbert Smith.

Mrs. Blanche King Boyce, oldest member, was unable to be present, as were Miss Newbold, detained by her own ill health and that of her sister; Mrs. W. H. Houghtling and her daughter, Mrs. S. D. Blackman, who have sickness in their family. Their absence was much regretted and they were sent greetings.

Taylor, Brookville; Mrs. Wilson Luce, Pasadena, Calif.; Robert Brannar, Cleveland; Frank Taylor, Duprey Higgins and Emory Osgood, Jamestown, N. Y.; Miss Mary Brann, Wichita, Kans.; Richard Meacham, Washington, D. C.

Miss Deardorff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Deardorff, Jackson avenue, expects to leave July 10 for New York City, to sail on the 11th for Aruba, Dutch West Indies, where she is to become the bride of Stuart Myer, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Myer, of 311 Market street.

"But now, in our generation—in the last few years," he asserted, "a new resistance, in the form of several new practices of tyranny, has been making such headway that the fundamentals of 1776 are being struck down abroad and definitely they are threatened here."

Yet all those persons who lie awake nights, he said, "know full well that in these days we cannot save freedom with pitchforks and muskets alone, after a dictator combination has gained control of the rest of the world."

And because freedom cannot be preserved in America if it is lost in all the neighbor nations, he said, this country is engaged in a serious, mighty, unified action in the cause of the defense of the western hemisphere and the freedom of the seas.

In one big inning the National Forge shot its fireworks display at Irvine yesterday and scored four times to settle their Independence Day ball game with the Akron Goodyears and they won 6 to 2, before a good sized holiday crowd.

Freddie Gagliardi handcuffed the Goodyears, held them without a hit in the first three innings, gave up four hits and one run in the next two cantos, and then bore down once more to hold a lead which his mates gave him via a four run uprising in the fifth inning.

The Akron outfit used three pitchers during the fracas, and the second one to walk out on the firing line, was shelled with plenty of Forge lead as Beemans, the victim, was tagged for six runs and six hits in his three inning mound trick.

"Emmy" Morrison made it easier for the Forgers in that fifth inning when he belted a double with the bases loaded and two out, to put the Irvine outfit in the lead after they were trailing 1 to 0.

It was more or less a true pitchers' battle, for the Forge only claimed eight hits in the entire game, but their bingles came when they did the most good.

Mike Solock and Morrison connected for the only doubles in the ball game, while Carroll and Buttermore, both Goodyear players, hit the only triples, each had one. And those three base hits, fortunately for the Forge, both came when the bases were empty.

There is no game at Irvine tomorrow, but a doubleheader is slated for next Sunday afternoon when the Gas House Gang of semi-pro ball, Ford City, comes to Irvine for what should be two really hot contests.

THE LEADING MAN

LOUIS ADMITS HE'S SLIPPED IN PAST YEAR

Detroit, July 5—(AP)—Fistic experts who contend that Joe Louis has slowed down had the word of the heavyweight champion today that "I ain't near the fighter I used to be".

Between rounds of golf, before he left yesterday to play in a tournament at Pittsburgh, the negro battler took stock of himself.

"I guess I'se slipped pretty far", he said with deadpan seriousness. "Won't know how far until my next fight with Lou Nova in September."

Then, without batting an eye, he added:

"If I find then I'se slipped too far, I'll give it all up. Ain't no use goin' on—just to get punched around."

His reason for thinking he had lost some of his ring acumen and dynamite punch?

"Why," he answered, "what happened in the (Billy) Conn fight. I have him in the third round and again in the fifth, but I can't finish him. I knew then that I'se slipped. Chappie (Jack Blackburn, his trainer) kept telling me that no little fellow should beat me, especially no little fellow who was 25 pounds lighter'n me.

"But I can't stop him till the thirteenth round. Then, I think it was Conn who beat hisself. He fight hisself out in the twelfth and then I finish him in the thirteenth."

What has caused him to slip?

"Dunno for sure," said Louis. "Guess it was a couple of things. I been working too hard. I been in training since November 13 and ain't had but one little vacation of two weeks between fights."

Pittsburgh, July 5—(AP)—Heavyweight Champ Joe Louis, dropping into Billy Conn's home town for a golf tournament today, said Billy is the best boxer he has ever swapped punches with.

"If he would box them all, and keep boxing, why I guess he would beat them," opined the Brown Bomber in his vernacular. "But mebbe he couldn't keep outboxing them all the time and they would catch up with him and hit him good."

He conceded he was behind in his own fight with Conn "until I knock him out".

Louis predicted that if he meets Conn again this year, "I would beat him quicker than I did in the first bout."

"But next year is a different thing," he added. "I don't figure to be any better next year than I am now. That's because I'm older than Conn and he's young yet." (He's 27, Conn 23).

Louis plans to do less fighting after he meets Lou Nova, saying that his heavy calendar of the past seven months was too much.

The champ came here to compete in the annual Eastern Golf Association tournament at South Park.

SPORT SCATTERINGS

Father Time played a part in the Casey-Boys' Club softball game in the City League last Wednesday night, when Harry Wooster matched pitches with 15-year-old Vito Greto—and lost to the youthful hurler, who in a few years should be one of Warren's greatest tossers. Harry chucked the pill over the entire route, but we remember the day when softball was at its height in this community, and Harry Wooster had more stuff on the ball than Dagwood can put on a sandwich. However, those days are now but pleasant memories and Wooster, though he still likes the game, has naturally slowed up somewhat. The Boys' Club got at him nearly at will Wednesday evening until they had a lead built up which was plenty safe. Now, we don't say that Wooster should announce his retirement; he's no old man. But his pitches don't have the zip they used to have, and still we'd bet on him to win as many as he loses this season.

On the other side of the fence is Greto. Everything is before the "kid" and he's got the makings of a really fine pitcher. He's not experienced at pitching in a game with a bunch of softball veterans, who know plenty of tricks about the game, and likewise Vito gets a little nervous at the start. But the way he bears down after he once gets under way is something to marvel at when you consider that Greto is only 15. There's only one matter which will worry those who are trying to develop the youngster. That is, he may throw his arm out by trying to pour too much steam down the lane before he's ready for that kind of pitching. It isn't necessary for him to go out there with the do or die spirit of winning games, because the City League is made up of fellows who are playing purely because they love the game. As far as the final standings are concerned, it will make very little difference which team ends on top. Of course, the players are in there to win, but it's really not so important that Greto, or any other pitcher, will have to wear himself out just to bring home the flag.

NATION'S BEST PROS TO START IN PGA TOURNEY

Denver, July 5—(AP)—While the country's topflight professionals continued to sharpen their games today for their private golfing party, the P. G. A. championship opening Monday, the sideline experts searched the entry list for a darkhorse capable of wedging into the winner's circle.

Three outsiders were turned up in the pre-tournament size-up whose talents were judged sufficiently high to give the big boys a fair run for the money when the field of more than a hundred gets off in the first qualifying round at Cherry Hills.

They were Charley Sheppard, who shifted from Philadelphia to Omaha a few months ago; Lean Mark Fry, California Open champion, and Henry Ranson, a straight hitting Texan not so well known to the general golfing public.

Sheppard, blessed with a brilliant short game, and Fry, from Oakland, are noted as unusually fine position players. Ranson enjoys a similar reputation in his area. Their games are made to order for a course like Cherry Hills, scene of the 1938 National Open, where almost every shot must be played to a spot.

The trio, however, were among the majority of tnerants on hand whose chances were so slight they were classed as 50 to 1 shots.

Top favorite's role belonged to Ben Hogan, the ex-Texas caddy. Hogan was the country's leading money winner last year. Tomorrow at Cherry Hills he will be presented with the Harry Vardon Trophy, emblematic of the nation's low scoring golfer for 1940. The trophy weighs 140 pounds and incidentally is two pounds heavier then Little Ben.

As 6 to 1 choice, with one over par for seven practice rounds to date, Hogan's chances were liked better than those of the defending champion, Byron Nelson, and Craig Wood, winner last month of the 1941 National Open crown. They were placed at 7-1, pending arrival and whirl at the course. The two were due in today. Nelson jammed his finger in an auto door last week, losing a nail and there was no doubt but what the injury would handicap his play.

Ralph Guldahl, two time former National Open king who won his last one on this same course in 1938, has been on his stick since arrival, so much so he confidently predicted he would be in the thick of the fight.

The course will be open to practice Sunday, when such elders as Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen are expected to get in a practice lick.

Pittsfield Host to Warren In Opener

The Marconi Club baseball team opens in the Interstate League at Pittsfield tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Floyd Kifer, it was announced by the management today, will draw the starting mound assignment.

The remainder of the team will probably be lined up as follows: Clawson, first base; Dahler, second base; Brown, shortstop; Reading, third base; Jensen, Riggs, and Williams will be in the outfield.

On Friday, July 11, the Marconi crew meets the Eagles at Sheffield in the first battle this year between the young district aggregations.

New Yorkers Rained Out; Cards Beaten, Brooks Regain Lead

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

You might think being in first place at the close of business on July Fourth didn't mean a thing to the St. Louis Cardinals—and you might be right.

They blew a double-header to the Chicago Cubs yesterday and turned the National League lead over exclusively to the Brooklyn Dodgers, who were kept in their locker room by an all-day rain.

Tradition has it that the teams in first place on Independence Day go on to win the pennants, but last year the Dodgers and Cleveland Indians came away from the fireworks in front of the parade—and everybody knows they finished second.

This knowledge must have been some consolation to the Cardinals in losing all three games of their series with the Cubs, who thrilled a crowd of 39,423 fans at Chicago by rallying to take both of yesterday's contests, 6-5 and 5-2. This left the Redbirds a game out of the lead.

St. Louis, outhitting the Cubs 13-8 in the opener, had a two-run lead in the eighth. Then Babe Dahlgren, cast off by both the New York Yankees and Boston Braves, came through with his 12th home run of the season to tie the score. Chicago pushed across another marker to win.

In the nightcap Clyde Shoun was steaming along with a 2-0 advantage when the Cubs suddenly sprang a four-run rally. Bill Nicholson contributed a double to this uprising and later hit his 15th home run of the season.

The rain that washed out the Dodgers and New York Giants also prevented the New York Yankees-Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox-Philadelphia Athletics encounters in the American League and held total attendance for the holiday baseball program down to 134,114.

The Cleveland Indians whipped the St. Louis Browns twice, 9-8 and 3-2, to reduce the Yankees' margin to two games. The Browns routed Bob Feller in the first tilt. They tapped him for nine hits in 6 1-3 innings and came up to the last half of the ninth leading, 8-4. Then the Indians went on the warpath with a five-run rally that included a three-run homer by Ken Keltner and was clenaxed by Jeff Heath stealing home with the winning run. The Browns made five erorrs.

The second game, limited to seven innings by agreement, was won on Lou Boudreau's two-run double in the seventh.

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

He has not, however, been one to let the other fellows do all the fighting. "I would rather die fighting Hitler than live under his rule," he told the conference of mayors at St. Louis in February.

The war took on a holy aspect to the secretary in the spring. "God help us, God forgive us," he prayed, "if we don't bear our share in the fight for the control of the seas against human slavery". Concluding a speech in Washington, he emphasized that the war would call for sacrifices matching those made by any American generation that has gone before. "It is going to take all that we have", he concluded.

"I humbly pray God that we shall match up, with our courage and resolution, to that which has been demonstrated over in that tight little isle from which so many of us have descended."

Knox was among the first to beat the drums for convoys. "It is pretty idle to discuss whether or not convoys are in accord with international law," he blandly assured a meeting of military engineers. "There is an enemy of all civilization abroad in this world, and can we afford to be anywhere else but among those who oppose that enemy? We have said we were among those who oppose, and we should make our opposition felt whatever the price may be."

From there, it was only a step to his declaration at the end of June: "Now is the time to put in motion the huge machine we have been building since the war began".

Some of the Army gold-braiders in Washington can be heard to mutter through their teeth "what machine?" but Colonel Knox is in the Navy now.

When bees started a honeycomb in a control box, telephone service in a Connecticut town was disrupted.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—"One fight a year," says Steve Hannagan, advertising expert and man about Broadway. "One fight a year, provided the names are good, is all right. Anything more than this is bad."

What Steve means is that if John Barrymore wants to walk into the Stork club and poke Clark Gable in the eye, that's all right. The newspapers will carry pleasant accounts of the adventure and it will be good publicity for the Stork. But if people whose names don't mean anything make a habit of turning the Stork into a cockpit, that's bad. It keeps people away.

Tucker Checks

I was talking to Sherman Billingsley, owner of the Stork, about this, and he said: "You hear lots of accounts of fights here and elsewhere, but most of them are faked. That 'fight' between Peggy Hopkins Joyce and an ex-Yale crew man the other night was strictly a phoney, a press agent stunt. They weren't fighting."

That's an interesting point, because scores of celebrities at one time or another have figured in public face-slappings in the prints; and yet, when you run them down, most of them turn out to be vague affairs which seldom measure up to their advance billing.

Some time ago the word went round that Warden Lawes of Sing Sing and Richard Maney, a theatrical press agent, had come to blows in the Stork and that Lawes had floored Maney with a right to the jaw. As a matter of record, Maney and Lawes are the best of friends and Maney merely missed his chair when he went to sit down and tumbled to the floor.

Tha Hemingway K.O.

Johnny Weissmuller and a naval officer had a scrap one night but it ended on the tame note of the officer's cap being knocked off. They started out into the street to finish the matter but the waiters stopped them and everything was smoothed over. Later George White, the producer, and Sid Solomon were with a party of four at the Stork, and White leaned across the table and slapped Solomon's face.

On another occasion Ernest Hemingway was at the bar when a drunk came in, occupied an adjoining stool, and pushed his hand across Hemingway's face. Hemingway reached over and pushed the drunk off the stool, and that's all there was to it. Yet next day on Broadway Hemingway was credited with a flashy knockout. Hemingway's name is a good one, and especially did it fit into this account, for he had just emerged from a sensational fist fight in the offices of his publishers with Max Eastman, the author of "Enjoyment of Laughter."

Incidents such as this are not frowned on by the managements of such places as the Stork, or Twenty-One, or El Morocco. After all, you feel a friendly, personal interest in the spectacle of an impasse between such heroes as, well, say Robert Montgomery and Jimmy Stewart. It's a good drawing card.

But the brawls themselves, I mean the brawls for keeps between two guys whose names are just Joe . . . well, as Steve Hannagan says, "One fight a year is all right, but anything more than that is bad."

Blows Against German Ports Are Increasing

At the same time, coastal command bombers raided the coast of southern Norway, the Air Ministry said, setting fire to docks and shipping at Haugesund and to a factory and the waterfront at Kristiansand.

Bomb explosions straddling Germany's repeatedly-attacked battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the big Nazi cruiser Prinz Eugen, raiding companion of the sunken Bismarck, were scored in a night raid on the harbor at Brest, the British Air Ministry said.

In the same sweep along the Nazi-held French coast the RAF was said to have blasted the U-boat base at Lorient, pouring explosives among moored submarines and damaging docks and buildings.

The Ministry said other flights attacked docks at Cherbourg, railroad yards at Abbeville and Rhineland industrial targets.

The attacks were the 24th by the RAF in the past 26 nights.

The 10,000-ton Prinz Eugen was said by the British to have taken refuge at Brest, damaged and cut off from safer harbors, when she eluded the cordon of British warships out to avenge the battle cruiser Hood.

The 26,000-ton sister ships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst have been bombed repeatedly by the RAF since they took refuge at Brest weeks ago.

The raiders reported shooting down two German fighters and said four of their own planes were missing.

The Germans bombed the industrial Midlands in their sharpest raids of the summer. Some west Midlands sections had their first bombings in nearly two months. Casualties were reported in at least two towns.

Sections of southwest and western England and south Wales also were attacked.

The British said three of the German raiders were shot down.

Berlin, July 5.—(AP)—British air raiders destroyed the 100-foot high Canadian World War monument at Brest in attacks last night on that Nazi-occupied French port, informed sources declared today.

(The British indicated that Brest, where they say Nazi warships have been sheltering, was one of their overnight targets.)

800 Selectees Will Reach Gap Over Week-end

(From Page One)

Guard troops absorbing them.

The 28th Division's first selectees—452 artillerymen from Fort Bragg, N. C., meanwhile, are enjoying their first weekend at home since induction into Uncle Sam's army some three months ago.

The 452—made up of 200-odd men from Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania, 100-odd from Philadelphia and the remainder from Texas, New York, New Jersey, North Carolina, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Ohio and Michigan, joined the 28th's 53rd Artillery Brigade Wednesday.

After a day given over to classification practically all of them left for home Thursday evening.

Since about 75 per cent of the soldiers here have been given extended holiday weekends off, the camp was practically deserted today. Things will pick up Sunday, however, when the 800 infantrymen are expected to check in from Camp Croft. Weather permitting, they will be classified outdoors in accordance with a new plan devised by officers.

POSSIBILITY OF SOFT COAL WALKOUT FADES

By the Associated Press

Possibility of a walkout of 150,000 southern soft coal miners appeared to be fading today as plenary committees of owners and workers gathered in the capital to talk over their differences.

John L. Lewis, president of the CIO United Mine Workers, and L. Ebersole Gaines, representative of the operators in the southern area said negotiations for a settlement of the dispute were progressing, and indicated there may be no strike Tuesday.

The comparatively minor details of contract wording—the operators already having agreed to an abandonment of the old 40-cent daily wage differential with the north—appeared to be the only hurdle.

As mine owners and employes sought to reach agreement in Washington, negotiations started at Alton, Ill., between the management of the Western Cartridge Company and the AFL Chemical Workers on the question of collective bargaining representation. The firm holds large ammunition contracts.

Members of the dairy farmers union in New York, Vermont and Pennsylvania, who seek higher prices for milk shipped to New York City, sent representatives of 23,000 producers to confer with Owen D. Young, retired industrialist, who owns a farm in New York. They hope to bring about a rise in price to a uniform figure of $3 per hundred weight, or 47 quarts, as compared with an estimated price of $2.15 for this month.

Boasting a membership of 30,000, the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association has discussed joining the union members in withholding milk from the market provided the groups, acting jointly under Young's leadership, can establish some objective and a practicable way to achieve it.

how close the hard-driven German spearheads were to the deep Russian defense belt differed, but the test appeared to be shaping up on the shortest line to Moscow—east of Dvinsk, and between the Berezina and Dnepr rivers toward Mogilev and Vitebsk.

A Russian communique declared the Germans had been unable to cross the Berezina despite three days of unceasing assault, but acknowledged the withdrawal of Red troops under heavy pressure in the lake-dotted region to the north.

In this sector, the Russians declared, they were forced back from the Dvinsk area toward the fortification system inside old Russia south of Pskov, and from Lepel in northern White Russia, within 70 miles of the forts centered about Vitebsk.

On the southern front the Red Army was reported in Moscow to be standing firm against an onset by numerically-superior forces driving toward the old Ukraine at Tarnopol.

A Moscow radio broadcast said the gains had cost the Germans almost 750,000 men killed, wounded and captured and asserted "the best divisions of the German army have been smashed."

The Germans, however, reported crossing the Berezina river in several places, rolling on toward the Dnepr and the Stalin Line little more than 50 miles to the east.

No One Wants Job as Mayor of Uniontown

mayor within the 30-day period prescribed by City Solicitor Frank Lane, the problem now goes to common please court, which will appoint the city's chief executive when a taxpayer's petition so requests.

The fuss started when Major William J. Crow, Republican mayor for more than three years, left June 4 for army duty at Aberdeen, Md.

At its June 24 meeting, the four-member council deadlocked 2-2 on the nomination of Charles A. Ellis, music store proprietor, for mayor. Council met again Thursday night—eve of the 30-day deadline—and voted on the nomination of Ellis and four other men, but deadlocked each time, no nominee being strong enough to win a majority. The voting did not follow party lines, council comprising three Republicans and one Democrat.

of a convoy, although depth charges were dropping around it at the time.

"The sailors told us they saw the submarine shoot, but we didn't see it ourselves," said Shirley Ralph, just out of Jamaica (N. Y.) high school.

Lillian Evans of Cambridge, Mass., said she was on the last life boat to leave.

The boat sunk a short distance from the Maasdam. As it began slipping away, she said, she asked an officer what to do.

"Swim," he said.

Miss Evans said she and two others swam about 200 yards to another ship, which was part of the convoy.

Seek Unified Plan of Action in Milk Strike

the Eastern Milk Producers Association, which termed the purpose of the conference illegal under the anti-trust laws. Young, owner of three central New York dairy farms which have participated in the strike, has urged creation of a federal mediation board to determine fair prices for producers.

Mayor F. H. La Guardia, meanwhile, said in New York City there is sufficient milk on hand to supply the Metropolitan market today and tomorrow.

Death of a Vermont deputy sheriff, dumping of milk and other violence against which the union has cautioned, has marked the stoppage thus far in New York, Vermont and Pennsylvania.

POST-HOLIDAY LANGUOR AFFECTS MOST OF STOCK MARKET TODAY

New York, July 5—(AP)—Post-holiday languor gripped most parts of today's stock market although a few strong specialties helped buoy speculative spirits.

Many Wall Streeters gave the financial sector a wide berth but those who appeared seemed a shade more bullish than otherwise. While war news from the German-Russian front still was of a confusing character, brokers said, word the Stalinites were putting up greater resistance to the Nazi push than had been expected tended to inspire a little optimism among commission house customers.

Handicapping sentiment, however, was the thought that business-as-usual now is "out of the window" as the result of defense requirements and the effect of dislocations on a host of small-sized corporations, it was reared, might not be sa pleasing to stockholders. In the matter of the forthcoming tax bill, it was suggested that security prices in many instances had done considerable discounting.

Syrian Drive Is Intensified

the British said. The town is about 175 miles southeast of Aleppo.

A spokesman said that another mechanized force moving into Syria from Iraq occupied Tell Kotchek, which is near the Turkish border in the northeast corner of Syria and is on the Istanbul-Baghdad railway. The force is about 300 miles east of Aleppo as the crow flies and 150 miles northeast of the troops at Deir Ez Zor.

British and Free French forces advancing north from Damascus and west from Palmyra with Homs as their immediate objective constitute a third threat to Aleppo. Occupation of Homs would put these combined armies about 100 miles south of Aleppo.

CHICAGO GRAINS

Chicago, July 5—(AP)—Grain prices were steady today in initial post-holiday dealings. Continued restricted sale of new wheat coming to market and a pickup in flour inquiry and business imparted strength to wheat.

Opening unchanged to 3-8 lower, July $1.04¼-⅛, September $1.05-104⅞, wheat later held steady. Corn started unchanged to ¼ up, July 73 3-8, September 75 3-4.

Rome, July 5—(AP)—The Italian High Command acknowledged today that lack of food forced the surrender of the Fascist garrison at Debra Tabor, Ethiopia, after weeks of siege. DISTRICT DRAFT OFFICIALS MEET HERE ON MONDAY

Members of draft boards and other Selective Service officials from six counties in this section will attend a meeting at the court house here on Monday afternoon at two o'clock to discuss various problems and hear talks by representatives from Selective Service headquarters in Harrisburg.

This meeting was scheduled originally for last Thursday, but was postponed because of inability of the officials to come here on that day.

Representatives from Crawford, Elk, Forest, McKean, Venango and Warren counties will attend Monday's session. Present from Harrisburg will be a legal advisor, a medical advisor and a speaker on occupational deferments from the state Selective Service office.

Because of the meeting at the court house, offices of the two local draft boards in the Warren Bank and Trust Company building will be closed Monday afternoon.

It was announced by members of the two boards here that names of men who registered last Tuesday will not be made public until Wednesday, July 9, which is the date set for shuffling the registration cards and the assigning of serial numbers.

After the cards have been numbered serially, it is expected that another national lottery will be held and order numbers given to the men who have become 21 since October 16, 1940. When the order numbers have been assigned, the men will become eligible for army service.

Meeting Monday Eve For Softball Pilots

The City and Fraternal Softball Leaguers will hold a joint meeting Monday night at the Elks club at 8:30 o'clock. All managers of teams in both leagues are urged to be on hand, it was stated today by Mel Johnson, prexy of the two loops.

Following is the remainder of the first half schedule of the City League. On Monday, the second half schedule of both circuits will be released:

July 7—K. of vs. Recreation Center.

July 8—St. Joseph's vs. Elks Club.

Completion of the first half with the second half starting on Wednesday, July 9.

NO DATE SET

No date has been set for the return of Major Edward Bowes, reported mending satisfactorily from an operation, to his CBS broadcast, now being carried on by Morton Gould's orchestra and amateurs who have made good as professionals. It is expected that the major will need at least two weeks, probably more, to recuperate fully. Since he has been in the hospital he has received thousands of messages of good cheer.

HITS RECORD MARK

Business in the Pittsburgh district soared to a new all-time high last week, and this week's index may go even higher, the University of Pittsburgh disclosed today. Last week's index was 149.5 percent of the 1923-25 average and represented the topmost level in the 57 years for which records are available. It was almost five points more than the previous peak, reached last January, and about 22 points above 1929's high mark.
